Growing Today .....

No one has ever said that growing is an easy task. No one has ever said that there is a magical age when one can be assured of finally being "grown-up".

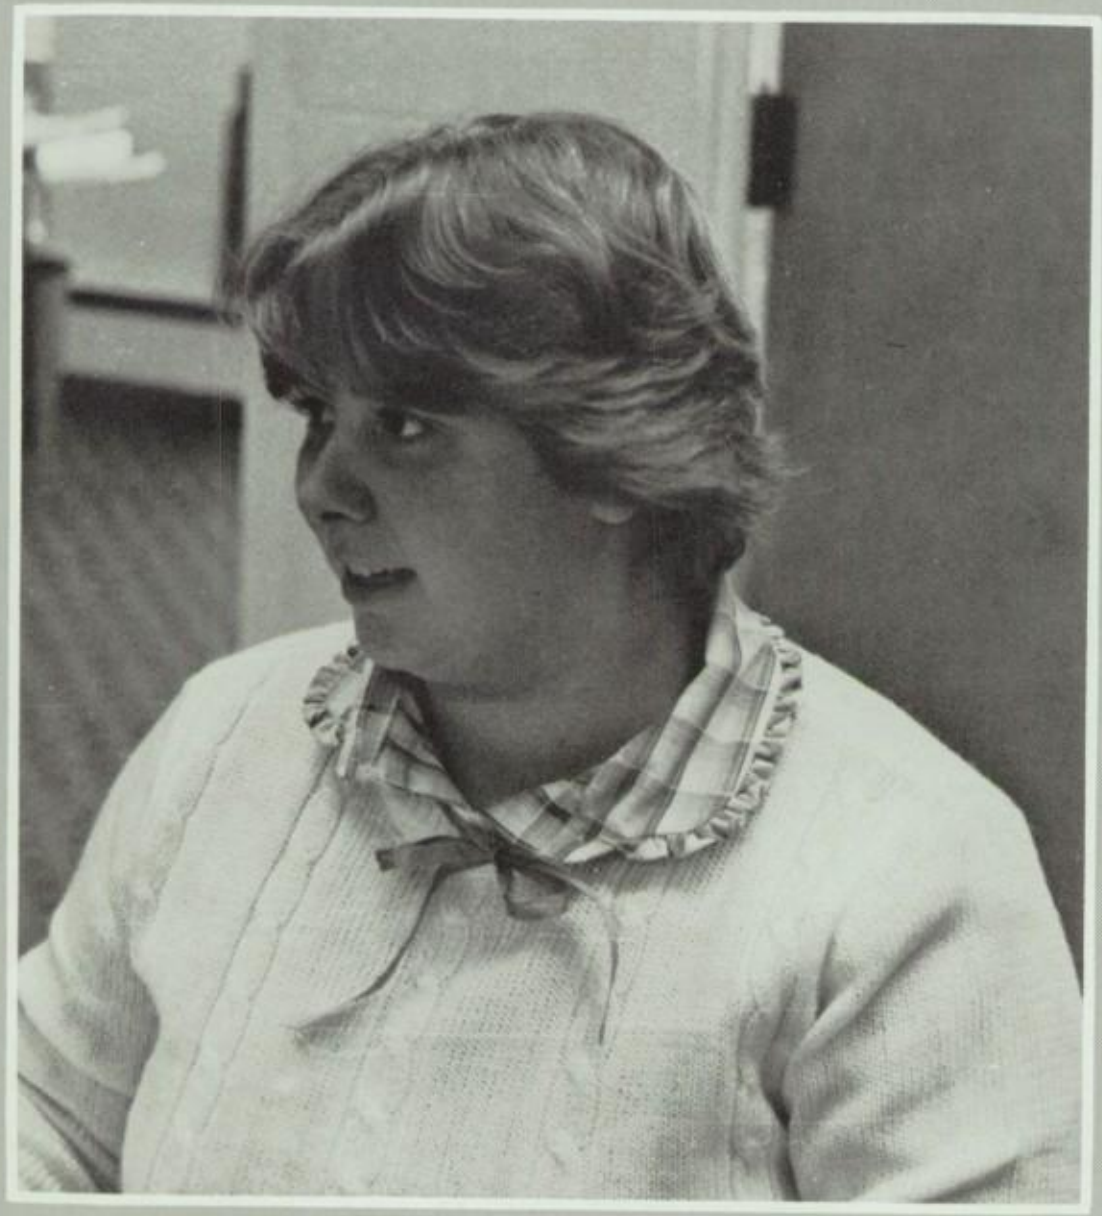
Perhaps now, in high school, some of us have grown alike, some of us have grown apart, some of us are confused by the changes. Perhaps we simply hear the sound of different drummers tapping out our songs. Your world may not become mine; however, your goals may not be the same as mine.

I hope though, someday, when the years begin to show and I pass a faintly familiar face, that you'll remember me. In that instant, possibly I'll recall the moment when our lives took their separate paths. I'll remember a bit of the learning here and an old battered poster reading: "Two roads diverged into the wood, and I, I took the one less traveled by, and that has made all the difference."

For Tomorrow .....

Student's Work Results In Pride

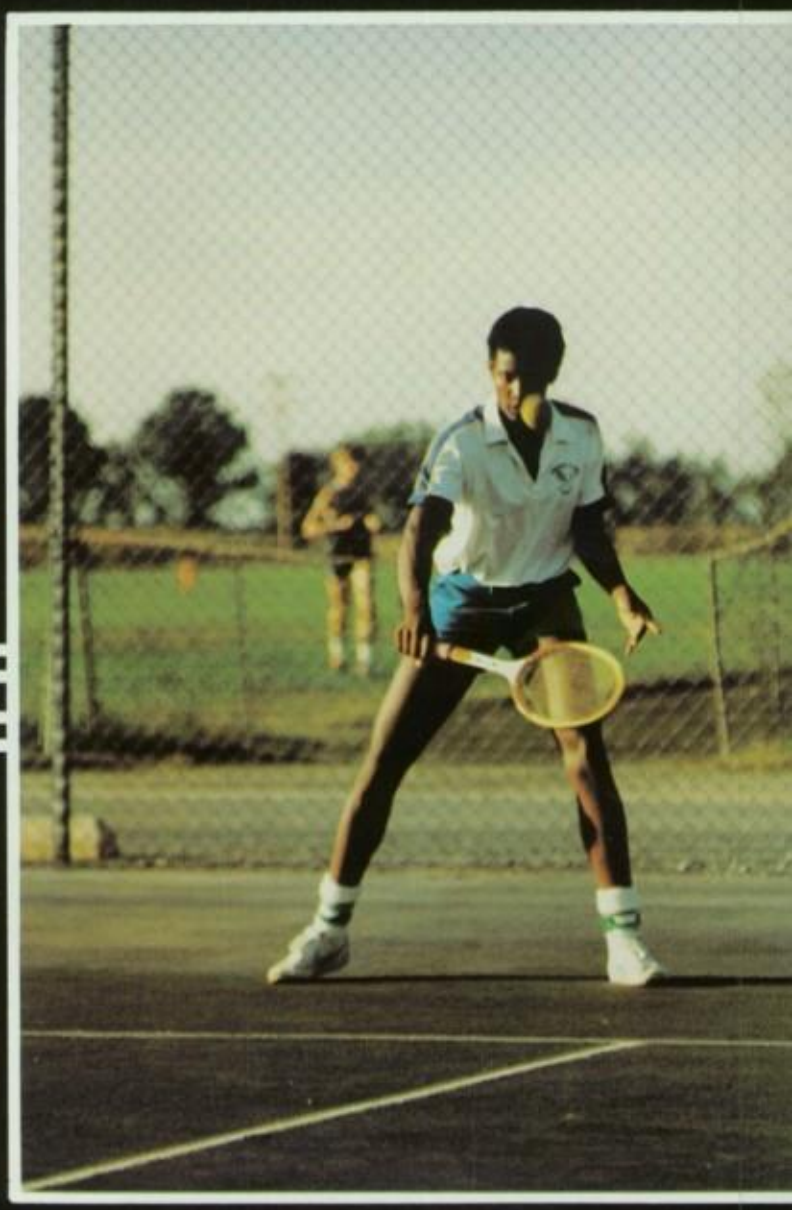
To believe in oneself is the greatest achievement one can make. There is no goal set too high to reach; all things are attainable.

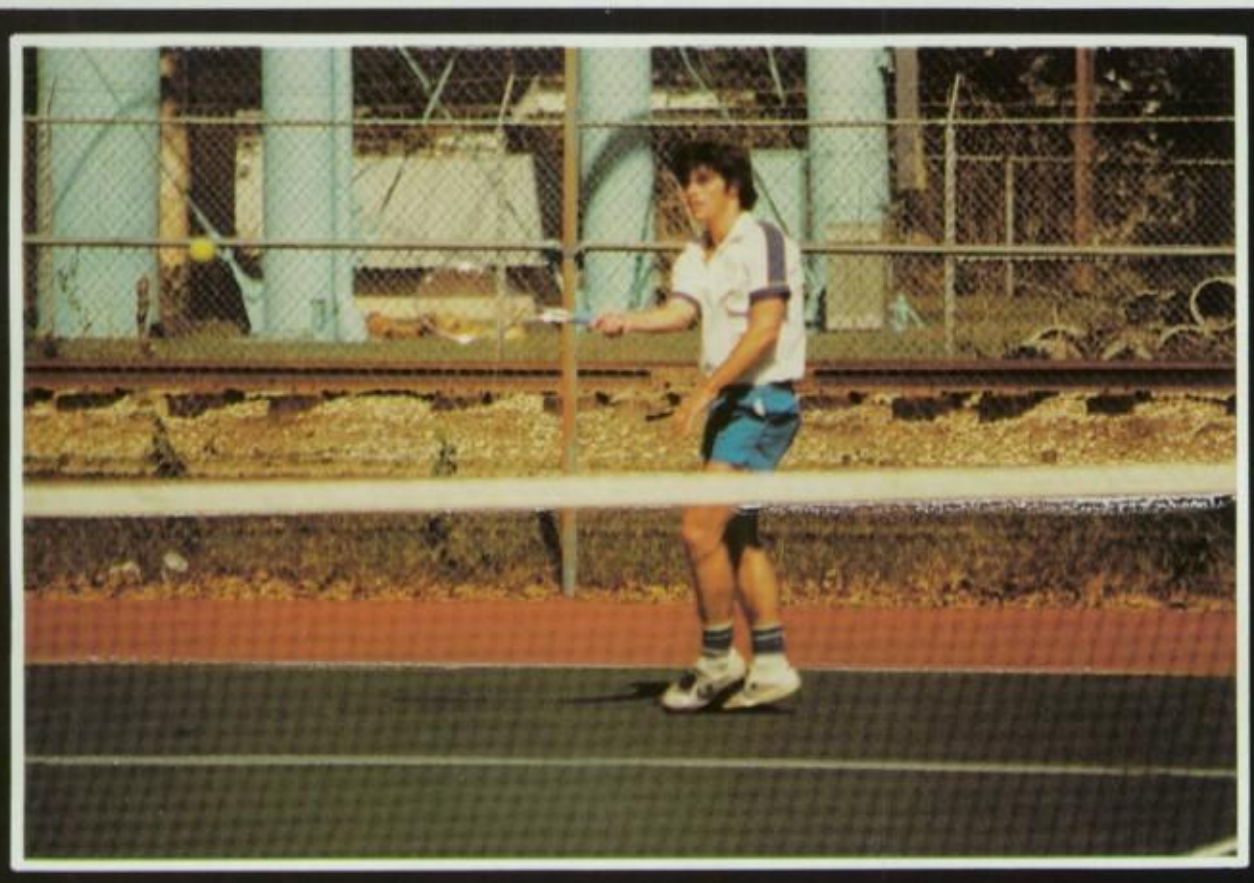


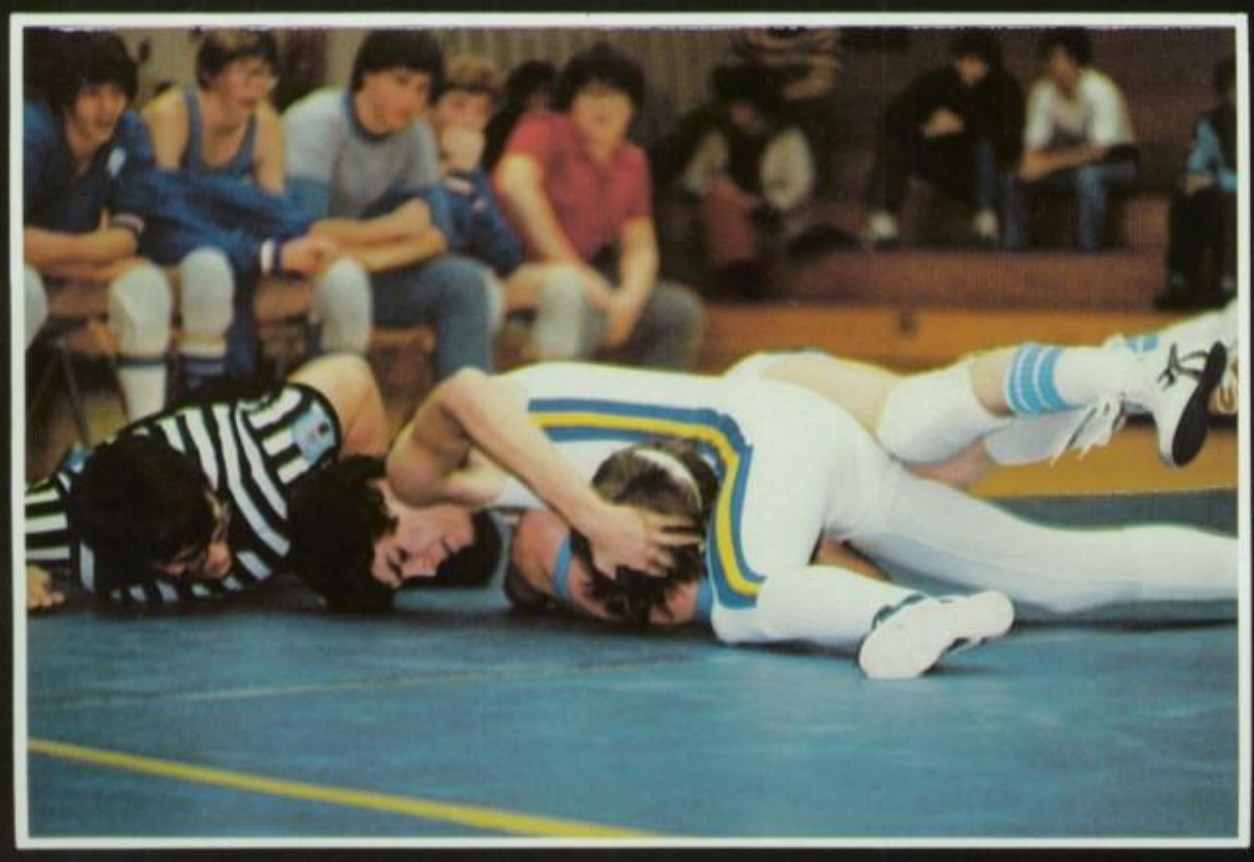
To want, to strive for, to achieve, and to surpass becomes a way of life.

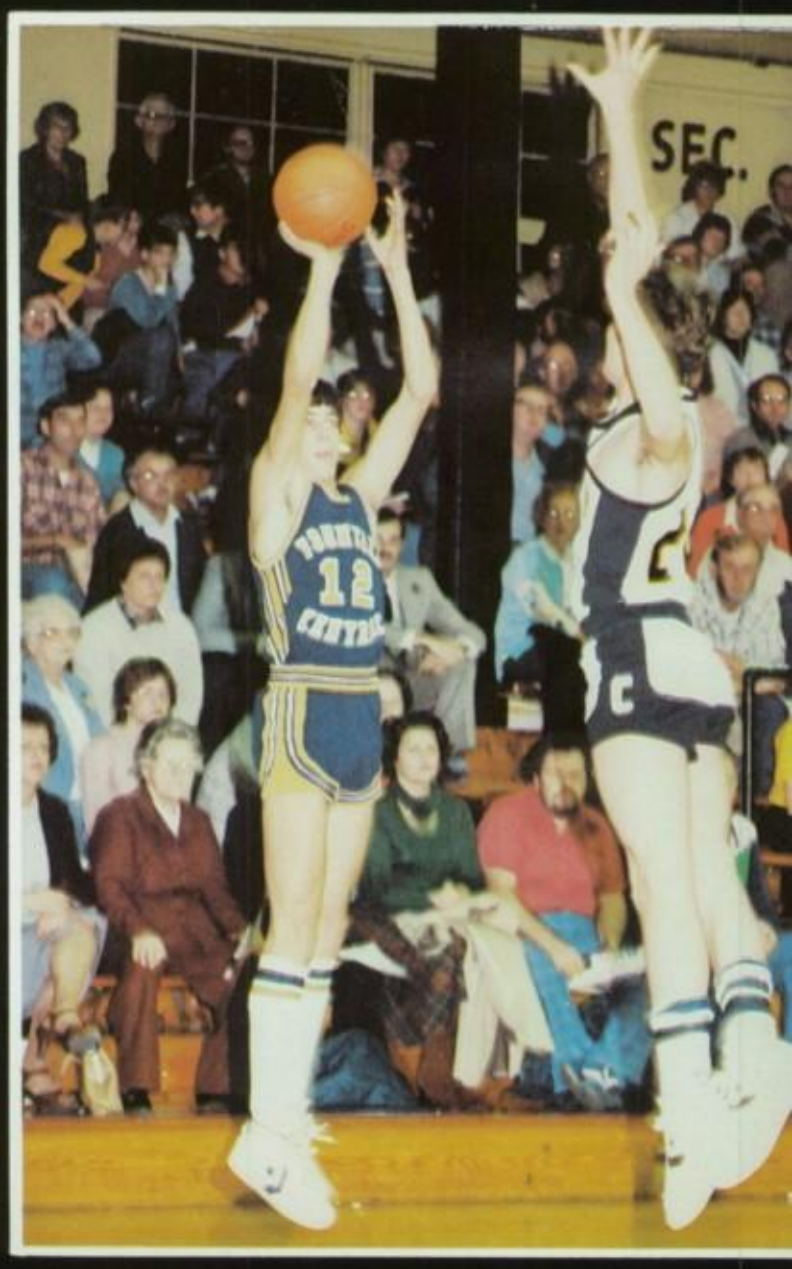
Fountain Central Shines With Enthusiasm

Sports Provide A Competitive Need To Grow And Succeed







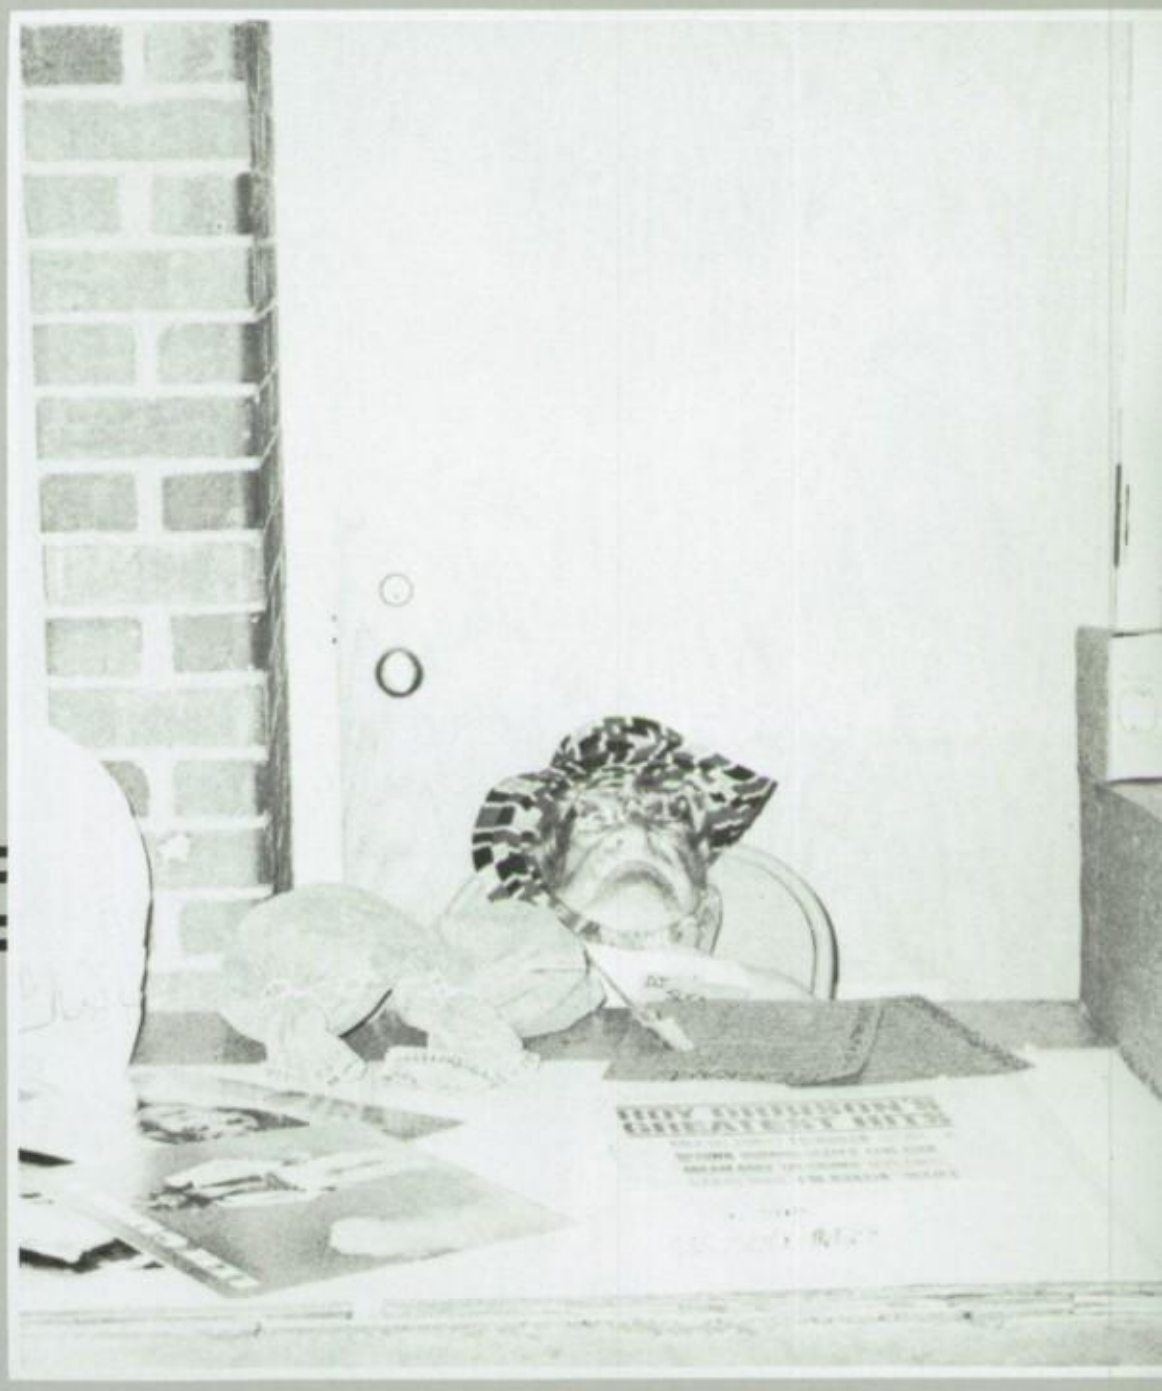


Education is the foundation of a successful life and for that reason, we are here.

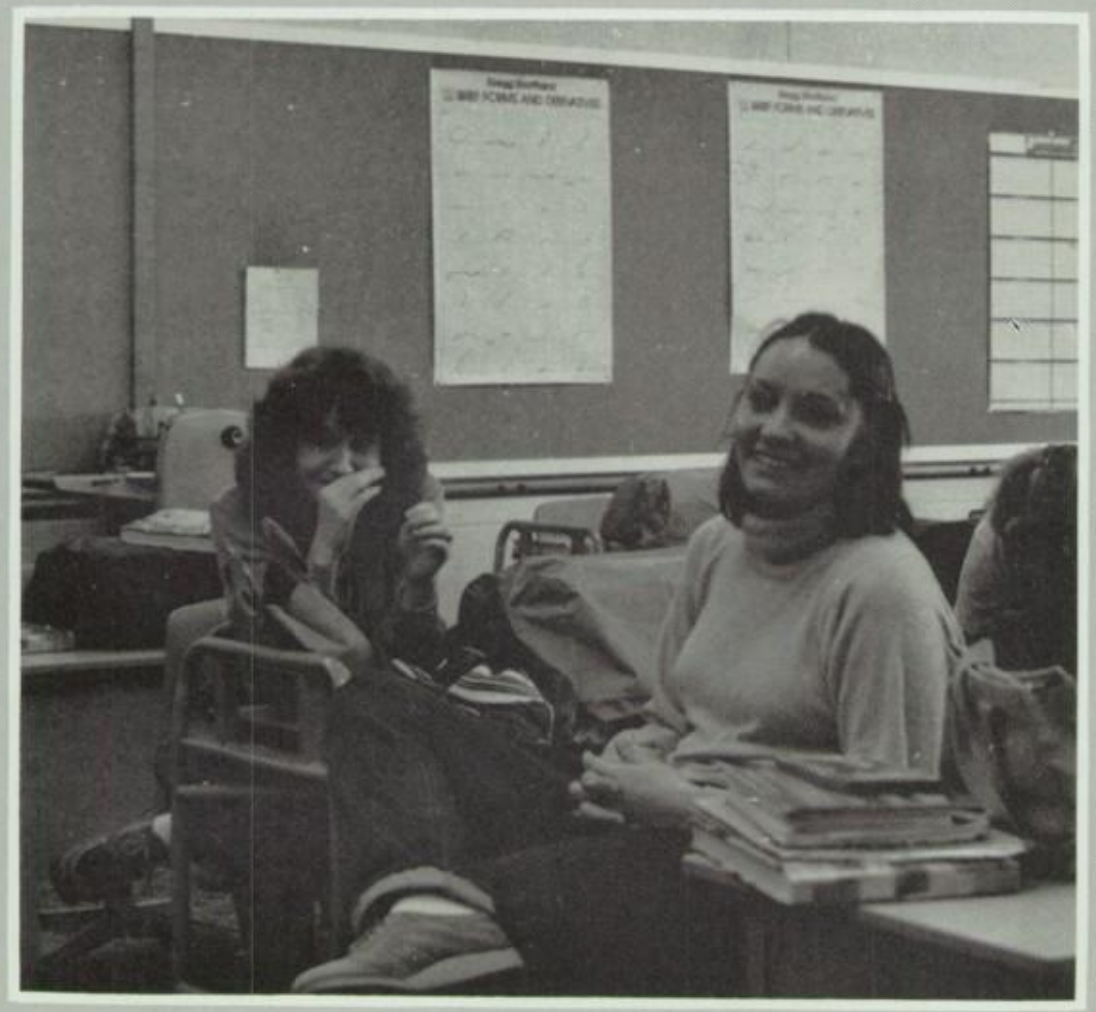
Growing daily in all aspects of our lives, we are constantly striving toward a final achievement — graduation. And, yet, graduation is only the beginning.

Fountain Central Students Work,

From our first breaths of life, the first cries, we have begun our own personal struggle to grow. We have accomplished a list of achievements, a list of forward steps, and a few minor set backs.



Laugh And Study Together



As children, we took our first steps, said our first words, and made our first achievements.

We grew socially, academically, and personally through out grade school and suddenly, fearfully, we entered the final steps in our education at Fountain Central High School.

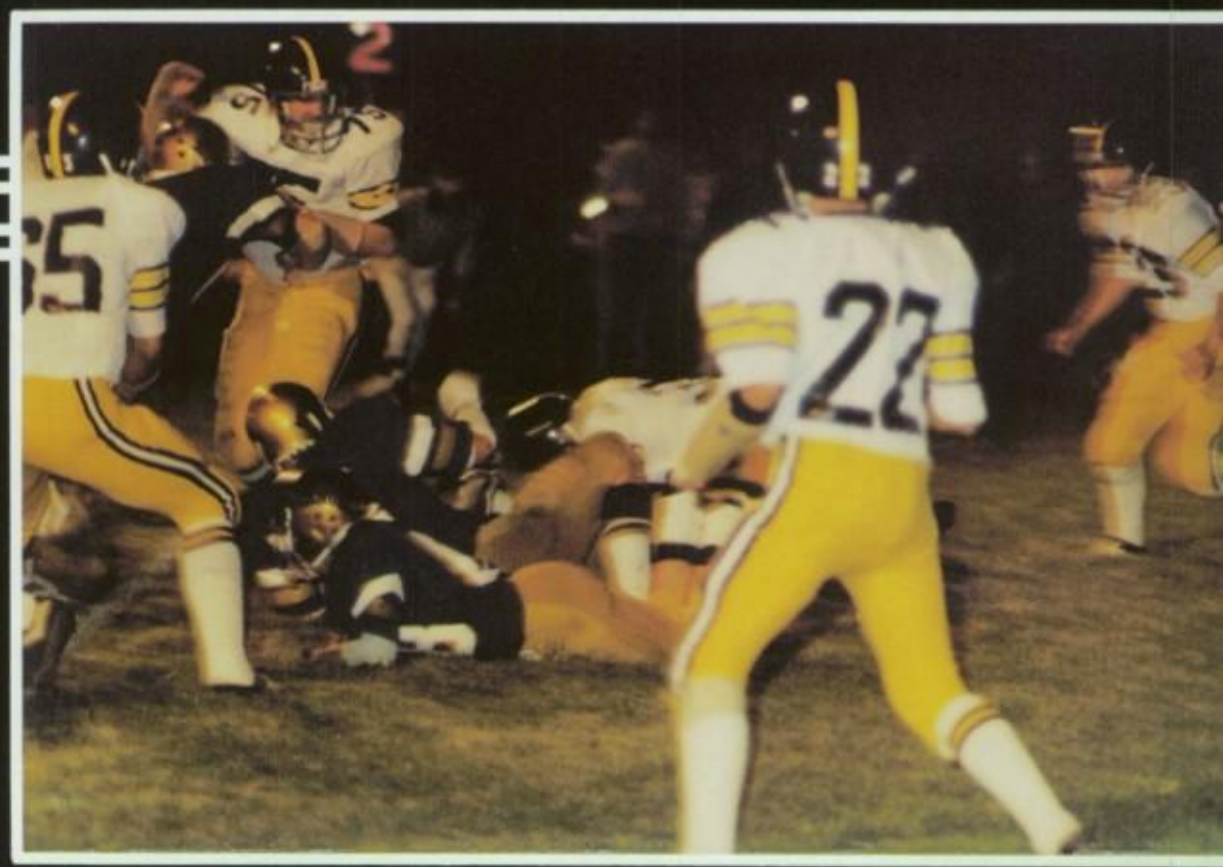
Individual Personalities Add Interest Among Students

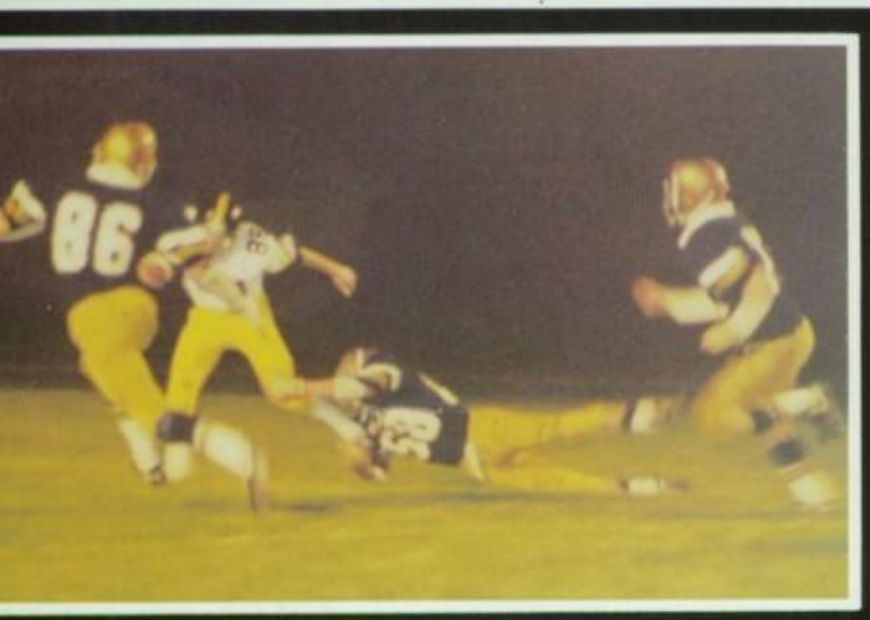
Silent, and yet ever-present, goals, hopes, and expectations have ruled our lives. Whether it be winning Friday night's game, passing semester finals, or dressing for a big date, we have learned, we have expanded, we have become.

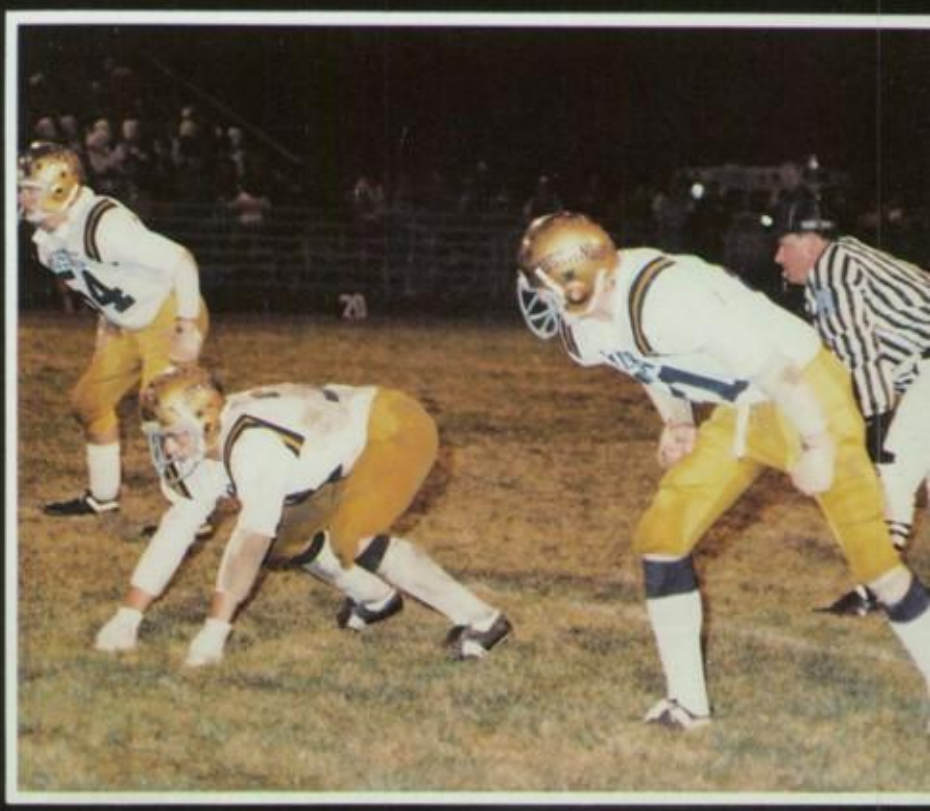
Our achievements, no matter how small, have molded us. The persons we will finally become are yet unknown. Adulthood we see only through a misty fog.

Mustang Victory Makes Homecoming

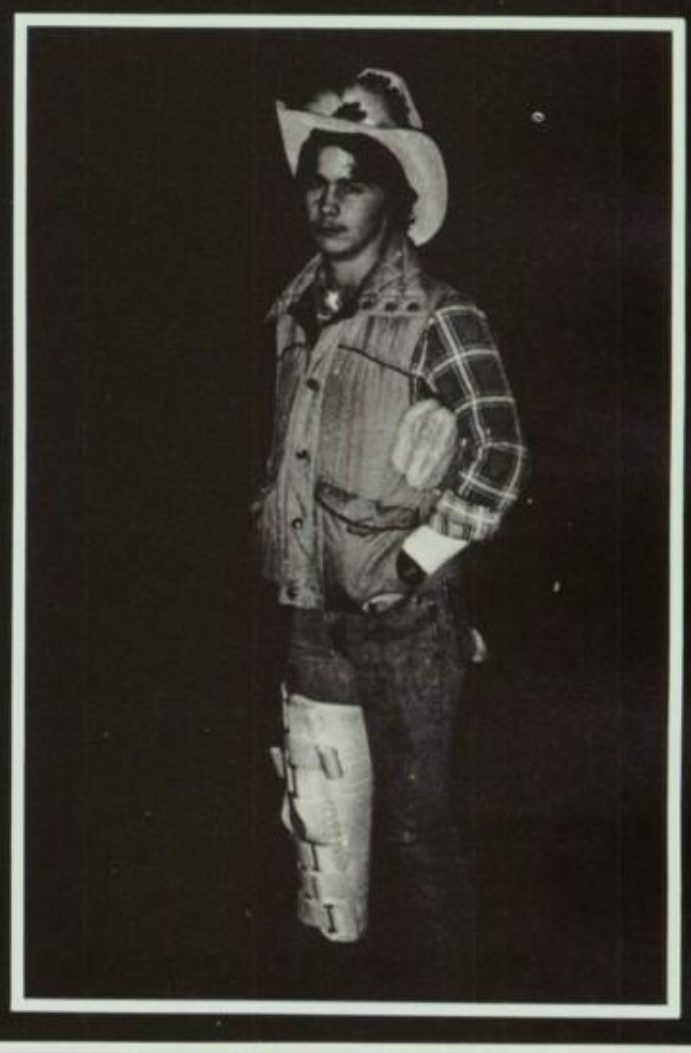
Graduation is not the last success, but, rather, another beginning. As a child makes a shaky step, a senior, once again, takes a first step into the world of adulthood; so many new dreams, hopes, goals.







Night A Total Success



One more beginning, yet much easier than before, because we believe in the persons that are evolving. We are growing today for tomorrow.

Tomorrow holds all our dreams and we have the knowledge, the faith, and confidence to make it a success.

As A Child

Student Life

All The World's A Stage

Drama, art and singing provide students with ways to express themselves. Expression through the arts has been with us from its very primitive beginnings to the present time.

Personally, I have found drama to be a growing experience. With every performance, I learn a little more about myself, others and the world around me. Drama helps me to be a more understanding, sensitive individual. It allows me the opportunity to actually put myself in another person's position; wear another's sandals per se. It gives me the chance to get inside the person, find out what makes them tick and how they tick, by living as that character on stage.

Drama teaches me two essential keys to life; one of which is self-discipline. Some may think acting to be easy. Ah! A major misconception! Drama is just as demanding as any sport, if not so much physically, mentally and emotionally. Every fiber of the actor's body, heart, soul and mind must work as one to live, breathe, become the character. Through the long hours of toil, drama teaches me a second key to life; the most important key ... love. The cast can be made of all ages and social rankings, yet by opening night, we've grown as close as a family.

Through all the labor and insanity of preparation for the play, we learn to work together, to love and respect one another as individuals. It's beautiful! That's what drama means to me; learning to love one another as a brother, be it your best friend or best enemy. In essence, life is one big drama. After all, as Shakespeare once said, "All the world's a stage, and all men and women merely player; they have their exits and their entrances, and one man in his time plays many parts ..."

Too many people are mislead as to the purpose of drama, believing it to be a way of getting in the limelight or, maybe, just another popularity contest. Not so! Like an Aesop's fable, every production has a message, or moral to the story. The purpose of drama, through the actors and director, is to bring to light the very essence of man's universal experiences: love, hate, joy, sorrow, confusion. The ideal production leaves all participants — actors, technicians, audience — with a better understanding of life's purpose. Love.

Yuletide Feast Turns Back The Time Clock.

A fanfare of trumpets blare and a true Yuletide Feast proceeded Wednesday, November 9, 1981, under the direction of Choral Director Tim James. The Yuletide Feast, a madrigal dinner, is a recreation of a 15th century festive England dinner.

One hundred and fifty parents, teachers, friends and community members participated in the gayla event. A toast to good cheer with a presentation of the traditional Christmas wassail bowl began the caroling of 16th century songs.

After the toast, the participants proceeded into a full-course dinner of roast beef with the procession of the boar's head. Swing Choir members strolled throughout the dinner singing carols of "Oh Little Town Of Bethlehem", "Deck the Halls", "Silent Night", and "Joy to the World".

The program concluded with "Bring me some figgy pudding; I won't go until I get some . . ." as the procession of a large flaming ring of figgy pudding made its entrance.

Overall, the first Yuletide Feast ever attempted at Fountain Central was a great success. The success can be attributed to Mr. James' leadership, the student's motivation, and the cooperation and volunteer efforts of many people. It was a real show of cohesiveness among Fountain Central's teaching staff, students and community members.

Connie Ziegler welcomed all dukes, duchesses, knights, lords and ladies to the 16th century castle setting.

While Connie Ziegler, Angie Storckman, Melody Keller, Sandy George, Diana Isom, and Esta Hoover entertained the guests, other students caroled throughout the dining tables singing age-old songs.

Music Department Presents Show Time '82

Jay Yates dreams of being another famous drummer.

"Show Time '82" was the theme for the Fountain Central High School Music Department's Spring Show.

The show, performed on April 23, started with the Concert Band playing "Theme from Patton", "How the West was Won" and "Conquest". Following these three grand selections was "This Little Light of Mine", "No Bird", "America", and "I Sing the Body Electric" sung by the Concert Choir. Tuning in next was the Concert Band again this time playing American Folk Rhapsody. The Wranglerettes then performed a delightful routine to "Chattanooga Choo-Choo" with the Swing Choir chiming in after them with "Back Bay Schuffle" and "Hello Again". Next came the Concert Choir singing "Brothers and Sisters" and "She's Got a Way". The Wranglerettes once again performed to "On Broadway" with the Concert Band playing afterwards. The Swing Choir sang three more selections as the Jazz Ensemble came in playing "Totem Pole", "Lady Madonna", "Force Five".

All of us, at different times in our lives, have surely dreamed of a life . . . "Beyond the Rainbow" . . .

Fountain Central's Drama Department proudly presented L. Frank Baum's classic tale, "The Wizard of Oz", March 18 and 19, 1982. Poppies danced and witches appeared as the cast of characters followed the yellow brick road with "lions and tigers and bears — oh my!".

Charlotte Ventresca, Drama Director, said, "The key word to a successful production is commitment." She said that each year she is impressed with the students' and parents' help, cooperation and many long hours of hard work to make the play an enriching and exciting experience.

Fountain Central's Drama Club has an abundance of talent. Unlike "The Christmas Carol", presented last year, "The Wizard of Oz" was a musical. Coordinating with Miss Ventresca, Tim James, Choral Director, instructed the student's singing. Indeed, "The Wizard of Oz" was an enchanting evening in the Land of Oz . . . of course, though, "There's no place like home."

Most Inspirational Short Story

"The Winner"
by Missy Oldani

Tommy was a little boy who lived down the street. He was a sweet and lovable ten-year-old. There was only one thing that made him different from you and I, and that was, he had cancer. The doctor told Tommy and his parents he had only one year to live. That is one year to fulfill his whole lifetime. Although Tommy knew he was dying, he informed everyone he wanted no extra or special attention.

Tommy wasn't afraid of dying; that's what he always said. But I know everyone has to be scared sometimes. He always was trying to make everyone happy. He said the only reason he didn't want to die was that he didn't want to hurt the people that loved him. He knew what it would be like. His grandma died of cancer, and he said he'll never forget how much suffering everyone went through then.

The school that Tommy attended was a very athletic school. Tommy loved sports, and he also loved people.

One of Tommy's dreams was to become some type of sports superstar. Even though he knew his time was limited, he never stopped dreaming.

Tommy had a friend who lived next door. His name was Jeremy. Tommy thought Jeremy was the best friend anyone could ever ask for. Jeremy was never selfish and never hurt Tommy in any way.

I remember that day when Tommy and Jeremy were outside playing, and Tommy decided to tell Jeremy he was dying. I'll never forget the look on that little boy's face, a tear coming down his face slowly. Jeremy took Tommy in his arms and said, "Don't worry Tommy. We've only got one life to live, and even though your's may be shortened, you have to live life as full as possible. Jeremy went on, "I'll do my best to make the rest of your life super." Tommy was so touched after Jeremy said that.

It was seven o'clock one morning when Tommy woke up and saw his sister, Becky who was twelve, crying. Tommy kind of figured he was part of the reason. He said, "Becky, please don't cry. I don't mean to cause you pain, and I'm sorry if I do cause you pain." Becky said, "Tommy, I love you so much and I don't know how I'll ever get along without you. I'm going to miss you so much, and I'm not going to be able to handle it." Tommy hugged Becky and said, "I'm going to miss all of you guys too, but believe me, I can't accept the thought of never seeing you guys ever again. That is, until we meet in heaven." Becky went downstairs still crying and said to her mother, "Oh Mom, I love Tommy so much. Why does he have to go away so soon? Becky's mom said in a mournful voice, "Dear, I don't want Tommy to go either, but God must have needed him. God told Tommy he was going to live with him now." Becky cries, "But it's not fair because we love him so much." Virginia, Becky's mother said, "Honey, you've got to understand something. God is the one who put us on the earth, and he removes special people sometimes. And Tommy, your brother, just happened to have been one of them. We have to accept it," she said.

Right after the last word was said, Tommy came down the stairs and said, "Mom, I'm tired of being some helpless kid with a disease. I want to do something, and I'm going to fulfull not one, but all of my dreams."

Tommy was a determined kid and he began training for his superstar dream. He joined the pee-wee basketball team at school.

As hard as Tommy tried, his mom already thought he was a super-star. Tommy's first game came so quickly, and Tommy was nervous and excited all at the same time. Tuesday night came with Tommy's very first basketball game. He tried his best, but realy, truthfully, it wasn't good enough. Tommy knew his best wasn't good enough. Tommy was never a quitter. It just made him work harder.

Tommy's life narrowed down to about one month, and basketball was about over. Tommy knew he had only one chance left to become a superstar, and that was to be the best player Saturday in the tournament.

Tommy was in bed the night before the tournament and said a little prayer to the Lord asking Him to give him the ability to have a chance for one last time at the tournament super-star trophy, and he closed his prayer by saying, "Lord, I know I may sound strange; but it means a lot to me, because it will be my last basketball game I'll ever get to play in my whole life."

Tommy ate, slept, and digested basketball that week before the final game. Tommy knew he had only one chance left to give it his all. The game finally came. Tommy played his heart out and got to fulfill his most wishful dream. Tommy received the superstar award. Tommy died a week later, and before he died, he asked to be buried with his trophy. Tommy got his dream. He died a super-star, and he was someone everyone will never forget. As you can see, Tommy was a winner anyway. All his life Tommy was a winner as you have witnessed by this story.

Academics

Instilling Wisdom

Our basic purpose for being a part of Fountain Central is to learn — to obtain an education that will prepare us to face the responsibilities and complications of adulthood. That purpose is not easily achieved. It requires each student to devote much time and thought to nearly seven hours of study at school and often many additional hours at home. If a student truly wishes to be successful in academics, he must realize that those hours of intense study provide a solid foundation for his future.

The difficulty of academic courses demands that students learn to set priorities. Many people are not only responsible for their classroom assignments but also must participate in extracurricular activities. In such cases the students should strive to continue to maintain a high level of academic achievement. That can only be accomplished by establishing priorities.

Whether the subject is English, mathematics, science, or music, students, through academics, have a touch of knowledge and wisdom instilled in their minds for future reference. The ability to express one's views and express them in a proper fashion can only be done if that student has the correct facts and can communicate them effectively. In the future all of us will be asked to prove that we have the educational background needed to complete a task, whether it is in the area of employment or a college education, and we must be prepared.

The future — our future — is why we are a part of Fountain Central High School.

Reading, Writing, Listening

Nouns, Verbs, Adjectives ... not again! Although English classes did include basic grammar rules, English teachers also included novels, informative speeches, creative writing, research papers, poetry, journalism, and drama units within the normal routine of literature and grammar.

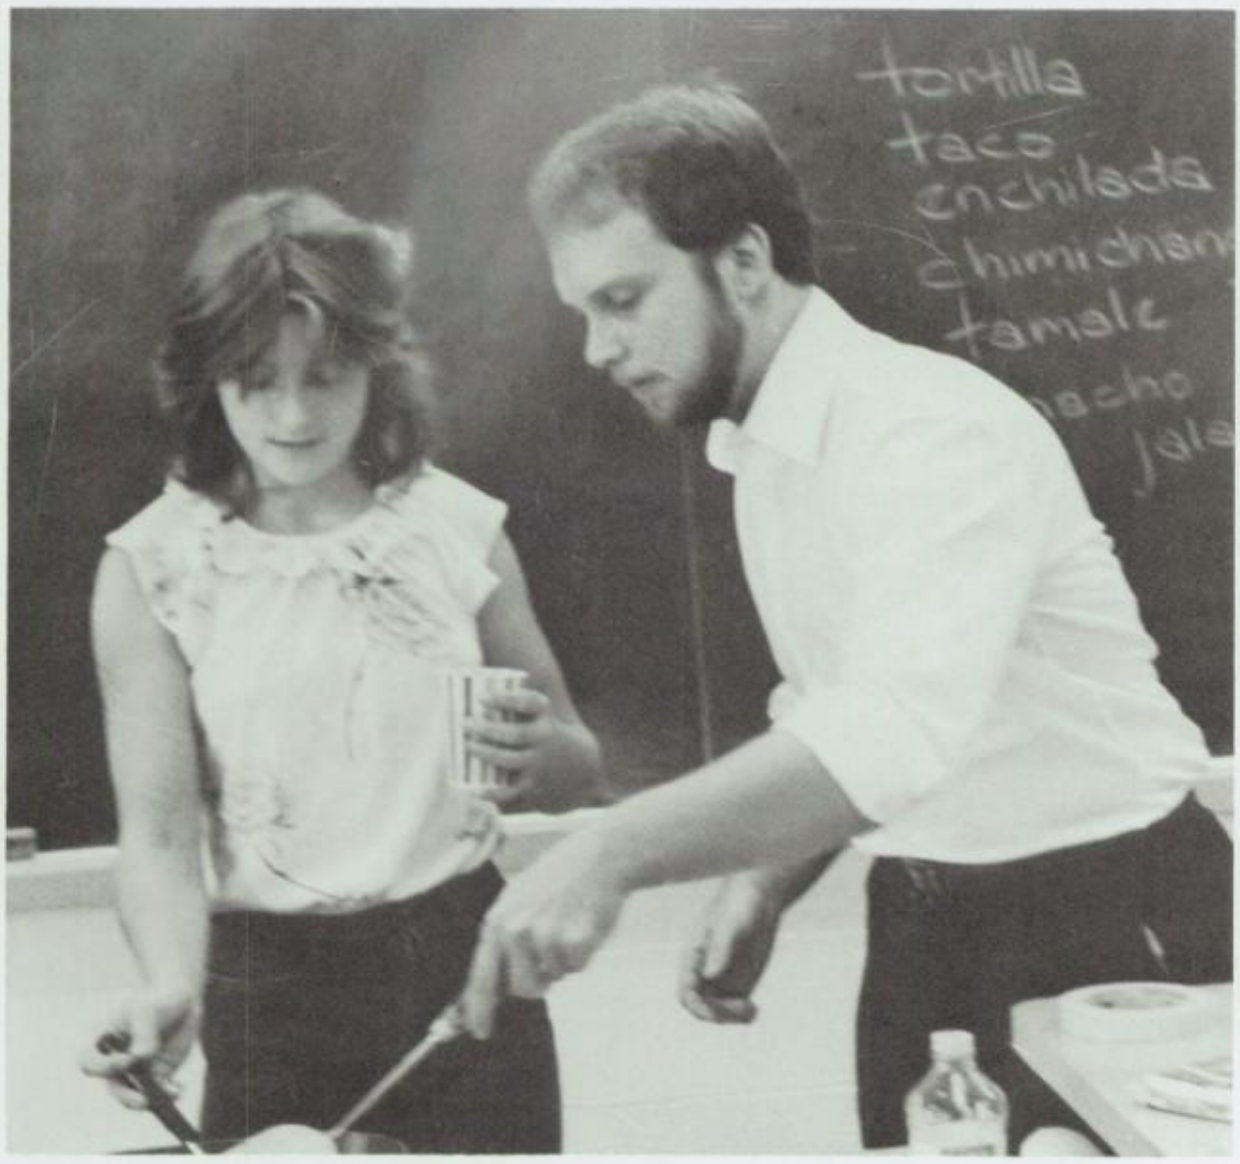
Although student slang rarely includes using proper English or reciting Shakespearean sonnets, students are learning how to speak correct English. "I ain't got no book" still prevails, but English teachers are on the warpath against double negatives, dangling participles, and various other common student errors.

The English curriculum allows students to select courses that are basically college-preparatory in emphasis or to select courses designed to help students manage in everyday writing skills. Depending upon the student, English is either the most loved or most hated course during a student's high school life.

Pat McCallister may be fooling the teacher, but he sure isn't fooling David and Terry.

Aesop's Fables become "real" in Mrs. Pithoud's class, according to Chris Harrison.

Ronjulia Eskew blows French bubbles while professing "Je suis" or "I am."



Mr. Greg Mansfield displays his talents as a great Spanish chef.

The Key To Foreign Countries

Bonjour and welcome to Fountain Central's foreign language program. Students may select Spanish, French, or Latin as a second language. Each foreign language student will learn to speak, read, and write in a tongue which was before unknown to their way of life.

Latin, known as one of the ancient languages, is taught by Mrs. Wilhelmina Harrison. Latin students learn of cultures that have past by presenting their own skits before class. The Latin students attended the International Festival with the other foreign language students enrolled in French and Spanish.

French, taught by Mrs. Jayne Green, has been enhanced by slides of her own trip to Europe. Although upper-level French courses are offered, Mrs. Green suggests that all students select at least one foreign language to study while in high school. She says that it enables students to comprehend a better understanding of their own native tongue and its grammar rules.

Watching a Mexican band perform, preparing delicious Mexican foods, and learning of our neighbors around the world takes place in Mr. Greg Mansfield's room. Spanish students learn to speak, read, and write Spanish, but they also learn to sing in Spanish.

Foreign language students must develop a basic vocabulary in their chosen second language by practicing key words and phrases. However, it is not enough to learn just words and students must also learn to combine these words into sentences that follow new and different grammatical rules. Whether students stay with a foreign language or not, the literature, history, and foreign root words will remain with them.

Today's Enthusiasm Sparks Future Economy

The ever-changing world of business is a challenge to all students who enter the courses available at FC. Teaching the business courses are Mr. Phil Rash, Mr. Rick Kirkton, Miss Janet Clark and Mrs. Betty Majors. The business classes offered include accounting, business math, business machines, business law, typing, shorthand and general business.

The content of the accounting courses range from starting an accounting system to evaluating the operation of a business to determine profit or loss.

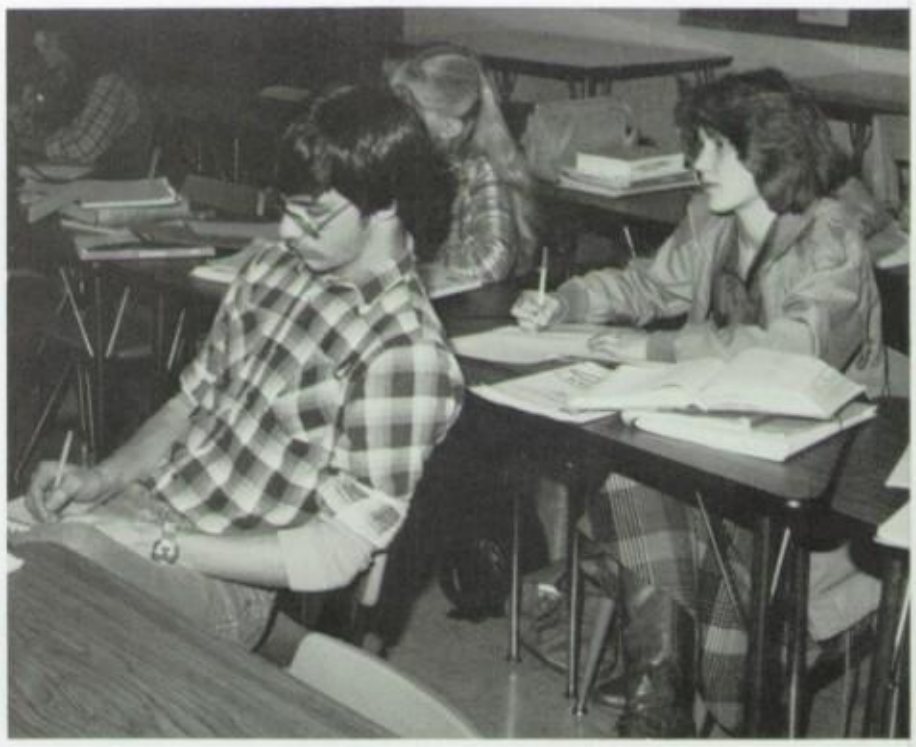
Business math includes such things as balancing a checkbook, payroll record keeping, consumerism, interest, and many other business principles used by an individual in everyday life.

All persons can, and should learn to type. Typing classes develop maximum skills through carefully constructed drills to build into your fingers the right and correct patterns for the machine operation.

The Business Department contains a wide range selection for the class best suited for you and your future plans.

Mary Lou Carter attempts to find the "on" switch.

Stacy Cooper finds that school isn't all fun and games.



Alan Pearson and Missy French actively scribble down accounting notes for upcoming tests.

Add Up Your Education

One can count on the Math Department to add up a students education. Mr. Ron Howard, supportive leader of the department says, "The course offerings are very strong and I am very pleased with the caliber of learning. I am thankful that they are willing to work and learn."

Mr. David Warner added, "Students should consider math-related jobs, because those fields are in demand."

Some of the many classes that are offered in the math department include trigonometry, analytical geometry, pre-algebra, algebra, general math, computer programming, practical math and a new course, calculus, which will begin next year.

Math courses are a general review of the basic computational skills necessary for effective functioning as workers, citizens and consumers. The courses present students with a wide variety of applied problems in realistic settings.

Mr. Ron Howard, with the aid of teachers, Mr. Dave Warner, Mr. Mark Haltom, Mrs. Betty Majors and Miss Lisa Barker have made the math department one that Fountain Central can be proud of.

Todd Hughes seems to be studying, but is he?

Eddie Barrick looks like he is studying, but Lisa Freeman knows better.

Greg Keeling tries to defy the law of gravity with a little help from his friends.

Lisa Keller's biology book shines in a Spanish course. Is she really speaking Spanish or thinking about a biology test?

$Booe_2 + Welchans_3 2x = Good Education$

Biology is the one science class every student discovers. This class deals with various laboratory exercises and class discussions, using the microscope, and dissection of plants and animals.

The advance Biology I class is just a few steps ahead of the regular biology class. This advanced study of the human anatomy and physiology is a valuable class for preparing the student for college biology, or study in the medical field.

Advanced Biology II deals with one semester of zoology, in which the students identify and dissect animals ranging from clams and starfish to the rat and shark. The second semester is devoted to the study of botany, ranging from primitive algae to angiosperms. Also included in this study are collections, dissection and identification of the various flora in the county.

Other classes included in this level are chemistry, advanced chemistry, and physics.

Farming, A Business Venture

Planning to inherit the family farm? Agriculture is an important class to many FC students because it teaches farm management on several different levels. Crop production enables students to judge soil and learn many things, such as hybrid seed selection, fertilizing, and harvesting.

Another level of the course offers students livestock knowledge. Students learn selection, herd health, feeding, and other valuable knowledge to produce good beef and dairy cattle.

The overall most important phase teaches the economic management aspect of a farm. It emphasizes decision making, the use of economic principles, and sound financial management. Students learn planning of the farm business, marketing farm products, understanding farm records, credit, laws, and taxes.

Whether a student is planning to be a large or small farmer, a course in agriculture is of extreme importance. Agriculture can also spark an interest in a wide variety of careers including botany or verterinary science.

Art Is A Beautiful Thing

The Art Department paints every student's future a little brighter. With Mrs. Jane Colson leading the way, the students are faced with new and exciting challenges. Along with Mrs. Colson, Mr. Tim James and Mr. Micahel Horan of the music department combine the students' talents in the field of arts, hoping to make students realize that music and art do go together. Both have the same elements, patterns and rhythms, notations and balance.

Mrs. Colson teaches painting, ceramics. drawing, leather, weaving, air brush, silk screen, printing, textile, sculpturing, latch-hooking, collage, fashion design, architecture, and artist history.

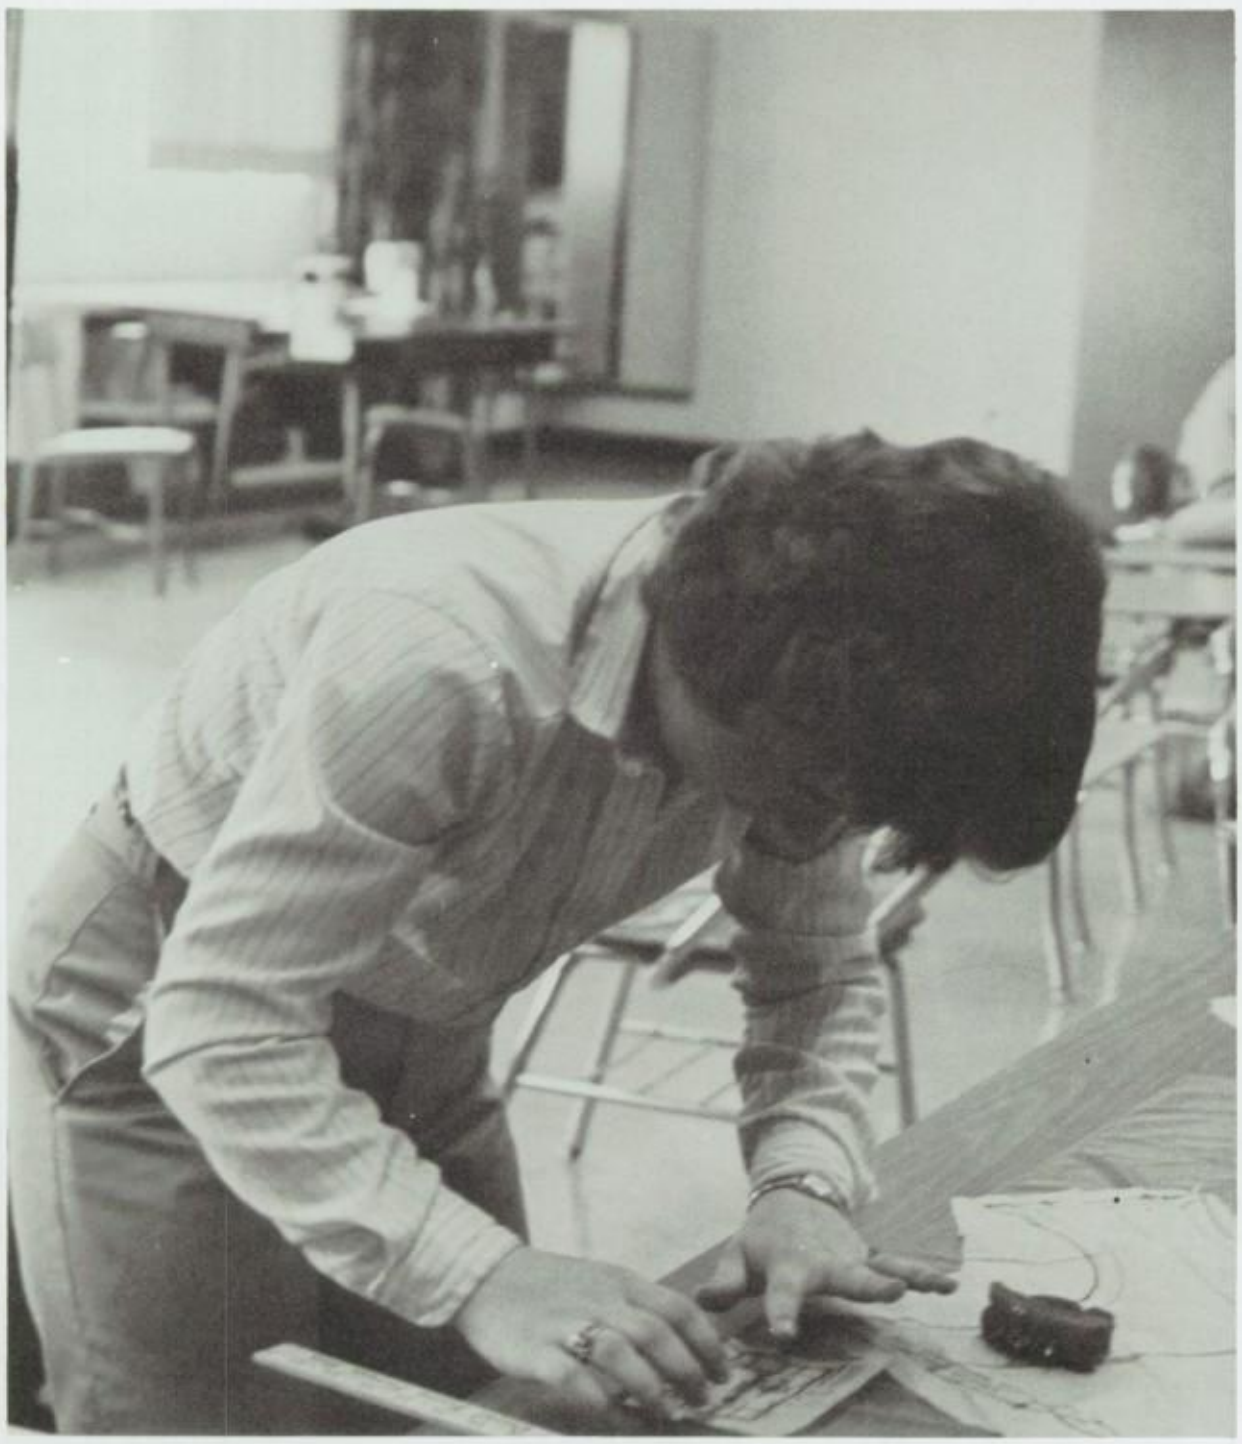
Each year the students' artwork is displayed at the annual Spring Show so that they can show off their newfound talents. The Spring Show also includes the other facet of the arts, the musical talents of Fountain Central students.

Mrs. Colson said that the funniest project to watch in her class is students' first attempt at the potter's wheel. Perhaps, "mud in your eye" could best describe it!

Hard at work, Bryan Thoms and Terry Blankenbeckler ponder the seriousness of becoming a true painter, a starving artist of tomorrow.

Chip Swenson carefully wipes a tear from his new creation's eye, or, perhaps he is just perfecting a voodoo model of one of his teachers.

John Carver, Kim Ward and Vaughn Keyes are relaxing with a glass of ice tea during single survival class.



Toma Hutson shows us, "A stitch in time saves nine."

1c. Bryant + 1 c. Lewsader = A Good Recipe

Taste-tempting tacos, chocolate cake with luscious fudge topping, mexican wedding cake cookies ... Aren't you hungry? Mrs. Rose Lewsader directs students in methods and techniques of preparing food. When a recipe says "one whole egg", it doesn't mean "shell" and all! When one "taps" a cake pan before baking, it doesn't mean to drop the pan, batter and all, from a three foot height. Furthermore, when a recipe says to "baste" something, what is basting? Roasting? Searing? Sure, I could boil an egg, but, after a foods course, I could do much more.

Cut out a pattern, wind a bobbin, and what? You want me to sew a straight line? With soaring costs of clothing, sewing is the answer! Mrs. Vivian Bryant instructs students with the correct way to fit a pattern so that the end product can be worn and not remain in the back of the closet.

The Home Economics Department also offers courses in: Single Survival, Child Development, Housing, Family Health, and Family Management.

Cliff Sharp concentrates on gluing the wood on straight.

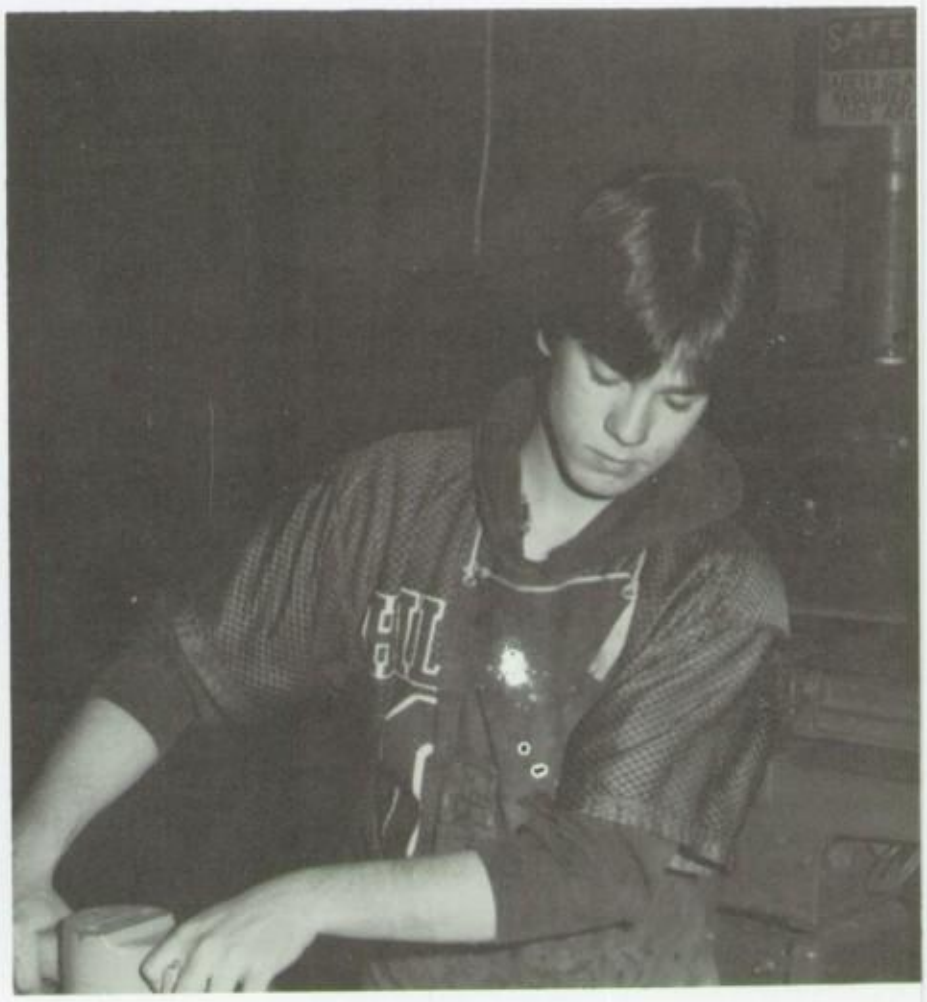
Drafting student, Dan Sowers, picks out a logo for his projects. Dan also spent hours printing the Pony Express newspaper under the direction of Mr. Kirby.



Sand! Sand! Sand! Make it smooth, smooth, smooth. Bill Ingalsbe is a perfectionist in the shop while working on various projects including a cabinet for his journalism classroom.

Build A Better Tomorrow

The sounds of jigsaws, tablesaws, and belt sanders are what you may hear as you pass through the Industrial Arts classes. Mr. John Donovon teaches seventh and eighth grade shop, general metals, and Electricity I. The students in the shop classes have learned how to build a hope chest, gun case, gun rack, or even a coffee table for their future home. The students have also learned to work with metals in making various kitchen untensils.

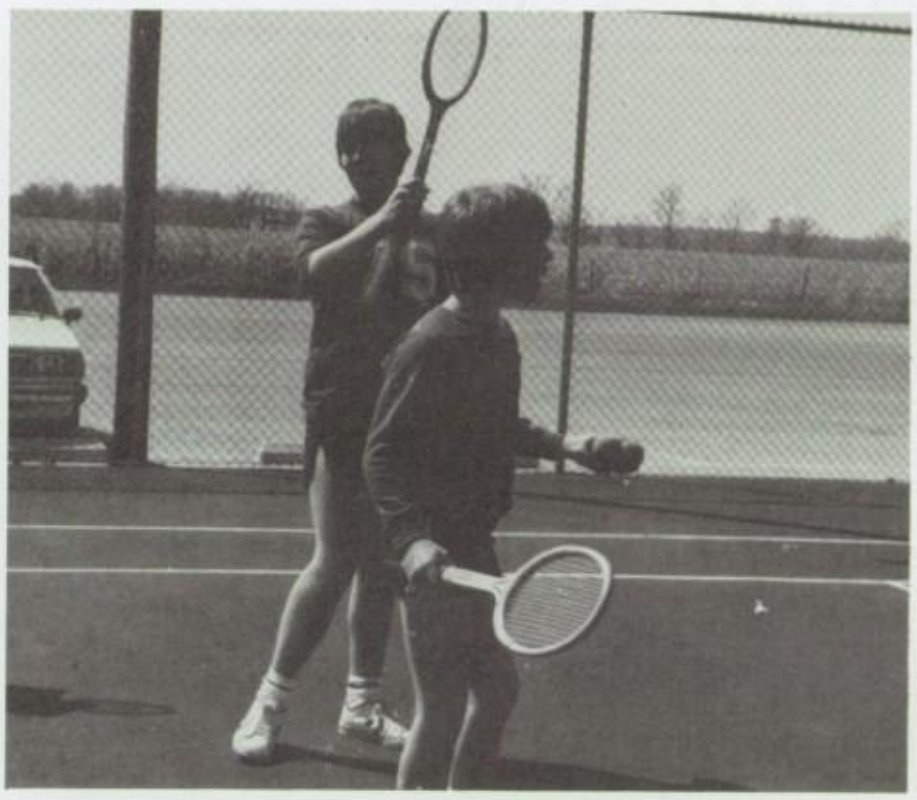
The fundamentals of electricity and wiring are taught in Electricity I. For those students interested in architecture and drawing layouts for homes and buildings, instructor Mr. Dick Rodgers offers a class in Drafting. Mr. Rodgers also teaches Woods I and II. Thanks to graphic arts class and Mr. Mark Kirby the school is provided with printed passes and attendance slips. Also the students print the Pony Express and are able to print their own personal stationary.

The graphic arts class took an interesting field trip this year to R.R. Donnelly and Son to see how the big printing machines are operated. The skills acquired in these classes will provide a stepping stone for persons interested in pursuing one of the many fulfilling careers in the field of Industrial Arts.

Hit 'em hard, Harry.

In order to be a good hurdler, you must get accurate speed.

Monica strongly feels bummed-out about choosing tennis balls.



"Had enough?" Todd French shouts to his unseen opponent.

Let's Get Physical

Tennis shoes tapping and the sound of dodgeballs and volleyballs hitting the gymnasium floor are just a few sounds you may hear as you enter the physical education classes taught by Jerry Snapp and Myron Moriarity. Students in grades seven through nine are developing physical skills and learning to have good sportsmanship while participating in games.

While they attend physical education classes, half of the semester is reserved for the swimming pool where the students are taught from basic water skills to the more advanced. The swimming classes are instructed by Mr. Jerry Taylor.

The physical education objectives are to promote physical growth and vigor through the development of strength, leadership, and fellowship.

The Language Everyone Understands

Mr. Horan directs the marching band during football season, the concert band, pep band, and jazz band. Band allows students to learn and share talents in the classroom as well as in other endeavors such as the National Honor Society talent show. Working closely with the band, another performing group, the Wranglerettes, directed by Mrs. Jayne Green, twirl flags and rifles to the band's every beat.

Mr. James swings with swing choir, harmonizes with the barbershop quartet, and directs the seventh grade, eighth grade, and concert choirs. The choral department took us all on an interesting field trip to the 16th Century with the Yuletide Feast, a madrigal dinner, presented at Christmas. It was, perhaps, the most successful program of the entire year. Mr. James attributes its success to a tremendous cohesiveness between many cooperative teachers, willing and determined students, and a continuing community support.

Gary Bishop may never hear the beat of this drum roll as the camera has suspended his action.

Danny Foster, Roger Brown, and Larry Neff are caught playing funny music during band class.

Think About The Future Study The Past

"We the people of the United States in order to form a more perfect union . . ." "Four score and seven years ago . . ." "I believe in an America where the separation of church and state is absolute . . ." Can you identify the above three passages? Would you be able to in ten thousand years? In the social studies department students apply this to their learning about their country and how it ticks. In Mr. Jack Hart's class, U.S. History is the topic of discussion and at the years end the students come out with a better understanding of hardships and toils our country fought for, for freedom. In turn, Mr. Dan Halladay applies a different perspective of our country — the government and economic cycles, varying from the rights as consumers to rights as citizens.

These teachers, plus Mr. Rick Malone and Mrs. Wilhelmina Harrison, have helped us to learn the long list of hardships we had to go through and those we are still fighting for today.

Carol Harper dreams of a trip around the world.

Diana Stockdale points out her home town.

Carla Beasley tries to bring a little life back to social studies.

What is a vocational class? It is sometimes referred to as skills for the future. Fountain Central has been involved with vocational programs for three years. A vocational class provides the needed experience for a qualified job. One must be a junior or senior to be enrolled in a vocational course. FC provides cosmetology and welding in the vocational program.

The Tri-County School of cosmetology is under the full time direction of Mrs. Carolyn Shelton. In this class the theory and practical manipulature cultures of beauty are taught. The art and science of all aspects of beauty is what cosmetology is about. The purpose of this class is to prepare the students for occupations in beauty culture.

Welding is a program designed so that the student will acquire knowledge and develop skills and techniques in areas of the welding trade. Welding involves the joining of metals either by using electric arc or gas equipment. This course is instructed by Mr. Richard McNeely.

Besides cosmetology and welding there are six more vocational courses one may take. Covington High School includes agriculture sales and service, auto mechanics, building trades, and intensive office lab. Attica High School provides a machine trades course. The program equips students with the training and skills needed to perform a broad range of service.

Tears And Triumphs Of 1981-'82

The world shared tears as well as triumphs as 1981 faded from the calendar and 1982 stepped into place.

The biggest international tear flow ever was triggered by three shocking assaults on world leaders, happening almost in succession. Indeed before the shock of one subsided, another occurred.

First was the attack on our own newly inaugurated U.S. President Ronald Reagan. It happened on a mild spring afternoon, March 30, 1981 in Washington when a crazed John Hinkley drew a lead and fired his 22, striking the President in the lower chest area. But fortunately, the assassination attempt was not successful and after a few short weeks in the hospital Reagan was back in the White House performing normally.

But not so fortunate was Egypt's President Anwar El Sadat. It took place October 6th. A huge parade was being held in Cairo. Sadat looked on with proud admiration while sealed in the Presidential box. At about 12:40 p.m., midway through the parade, Aba Ghazala pointed out to Sadat 6 mirage jet fighters sweeping low, overhead. While unsuspecting eyes were turned skyward, three uniformed men leapt from a truck which had stopped in front of the Presidential box and opened fire. The assault left Sadat lying dead in cold blood. The world stood still in shock, immobilized by the news.

Yet another world leader, a "gladiator for peace" had a close shave with death. On the warm spring day of May 3rd, in St. Peter's Square, Pope John Paul II was shot and seriously wounded. Police immediately arrested a gunman who later identified himself as an escaped Turkish killer who had previously threatned the Pope. The peniff was struck by two bullets in the abdomen, right arm and left hand as he was standing in an open car that was moving slowly among 10,000 worshipers in the square. The Pope underwent an operation in which parts of his intestines were removed. Not long after the Pope was released, he had to be readmitted for a second operation because an infection had set in. His recovery was slow, but after about a month of rest the Pope was back in the swing of things.

Another tragedy occurred that affected Americans specifically. On March 6, 1982, America lost one of the best comedians of this era. He was famed actor John Belushi. Belushi was the leading man in the movie "Continentel Divide." On "Saturday Night Live" he and Dan Ackroyd developed a band called Blues Brothers. Belushi's style was unique and most distinctive.

1981-82 was also a year of controversy. President Reagan proposed to the people "Reagonomics", in which huge budget cuts in things such as welfare and social security took place and more money went to defense spending. Some have called it a "take from the poor give to the senseless."

All these events seem small compared to the trauma which has taken place inside Poland. A man who Time Magazine voted man of the year, Lech Walesa, led a crusade to freedom. However, what had begun as Poland's year of liberty, ended dramatically in violence, bloodshed and repression.

Not all the 1981-82 year was conflict and bloodshed. On July 29, 1981, Charles Phillip Arthur George, the Prince of Wales, took a bride. She is Lady Diana Spencer. The ceremony was held at St. Paul's Cathedral in London. Some 2,700 guests attended the wedding. There was extensive news coverage of the wedding in both print and broadcast media. It was estimated that 700 million people made up the world-wide television audience. Indeed the wedding day had been declared a holiday in Great Britian and the festivities began as massive fireworks displayed the night before.

Wednesday March 10, 1982 was "Doomsday". On this day all nine planets were in almost perfect alignment in the same side of the sun. It hasn't happened since 999A.D., referred to as the Jupiter Effect. The event was supposed to cause earth tremors and firestorms because of the tremendous gravitational pull. The world held its breath as Doomsday dawned, waiting for the anticipated moment. To the disappointment of some and the delight of others "Doomsday" came and went as normally as yesterday and the day before.

Competition is an everyday occurance in today's society, it's a hard struggle for survival in the world we live in. Lets take a look at the men and women who compete for a living — the athletes of today.

In pro tennis, another Big Mac attack hit John McEnroe as he pounded out his third consecutive U.S. Open. He served notice that he's on top to stay.

The year was good for the San Francisco 49'ers as they hit pay dirt in the Super Bowl XVI. Cincinnati was dazzled by a master of deceit, Bill Walsh, in the Silverdome.

Actor John Belushi will long be remembered for his food fight in "Animal House".

The tar heels of North Carolina, being ranked in the top three in the national, finally prevailed by winning coach Dean Smith his first national championship. Nothing could be finer than to be in Carolina, after beating Georgetown 63-62, in the college basketball scene. In the pros, former Indiana State star Larry Bird lead the Boston Celtics over the Philadelphia 76'ers to win the NBA World Championship.

In other sports, Craig Stadler had his troubles, but he clung grimly to his slim lead and held off Dan Pohl to win his first masters. In the baseball world, even though the major league teams went on strike the Los Angeles held on to take the World Series from the New York Yankees.

As A Teen

Organizations

Belonging, Sharing, Caring

To be a part of a certain group of people is to share your love and feelings with each and every person in that group. This is what being involved in school-oriented clubs and organizations is all about. I think that working together as a group in clubs to try to get matters accomplished can make a person feel like he or she is a part of something wonderful. I love the opportunity to stand up and express my ideas, thoughts and especially express myself to those I have something in common with, my peers. We all can enjoy what we are doing and have fun and lasting memories of what we have done.

Involving myself in clubs teaches me to respect others. It gives me a better understanding of what working together is all about. Dedication is a big part of being in a club or organization. I have to be dedicated to put my best effort forward and all my heart into what I am doing. Clubs teach me to be responsible too! Responsibility can be used whenever I do anything. When someone asks me to do a job in the club, I have to be responsible to make sure I carry out my duty and get it done.

When I venture into life, I will be able to look back and think of my involvement in all of my clubs. This will remind me what responsibility and dedication is, but most of all, it will remind me of the love that can be shared with others.

Clubs Offer Skills

Many aspects of our future depend on the science of technology. Technology is a rapidly changing part of our lives and Fountain Central has changed to meet the times by adding computer technology to the course offerings. The Fountain Central Computer Club, sponsored by Mr. David Warner, has shown a great interest in the innovative aspects of computer technology and is eager to learn about the newest computer systems.

Everyone needs some quiet times in the normal, busy day to relax and escape into a good book. Whether you like love stories, mysteries, novels, fiction, biographies, etc., the Library Club selects new and interesting books for your escape into another world. So that you may enjoy your peaceful times, as much as your hustling and bustling days, the Library Club does the selecting for you. Even if your chosen book is required reading, the Library Club hopes to make it as enjoyable as possible by providing the most intriguing, and interesting books available on the market.

For Future Challenges

Do you know what the hypothalamus is or an olfactory lobe? These are two major organs in the human brain, but if you want any details, you will have to ask one of the members of the FC Science Club. Headed by Ron Colson, the club is actively interested in all areas of science. They visited WIAI radio station in Danville, IL, where they learned just what makes a turntable turn and how the transmitters transmit the D.J.'s voice into our home and car stereos. FC also took part in a national program where they planted a sapling that was provided by our government. Our evergreen tree is located slightly north of the east patio by study hall.

HY-YA!! Learning the art of self-defense is one of the main objectives of the Karate Club. Karate is a new and growing club instructed by Mr. Tom Ward. It was indeed unusual to see Fountain Central students in their Gi's sporting various colors of belts. What other club can go barefoot at school? What other club has such a self-protective defense system?

Language Growing Today

What comes into your mind when you think French? Cuisine? Sidewalk cafes? Wine? The Louvre? All of these are very intriguing and there is much more to learn about and experience in French Club. Our French Club had a very exciting year with a trip to the Convention Center in Indianapolis for the annual International Festival, FC Latin and Spanish Clubs also attended. In May, the French Club ventured to Indianapolis once again for a night of delectable delights at La Tour.

Latin is one of the sources of our American language. One would be surprised at the number of words that have a Latin root. It is sometimes a very difficult language but nonetheless a prerequisite for many college courses. The FC Latin Club took a trip to the International Festival and indulged in pasta and sauce at an Italian restaurant. Chariot races and toga parties were a few of the other activities in which the FC Latin Club participated.

For Tomorrow

Students involved in the Historical Society are students eager to learn more about the history of our country. Usually the students are quite active selling candy, doing skits and traveling to museums. Their activities were slowed with the unfortunate illness of club sponsor, Mrs. Wilhelmina Harrison. The students sent get-well cards and letters hoping their sponsor would soon be back in the swing of things.

It was an active year for students in the Spanish Club. The students made tacos in Spanish classes, attended the International Festival and a Purdue foreign language day. The highlight of the year for the Spanish Club was attending a performance of the Ballet Folklorico Mexicano de Gracilla Tapia. The ballet was held at the Murat Theatre in Indianapolis. The ballet Folklorico has performed for many world dignitaries including Mao, the Tung Mikita Krasher, and many crowned heads of Europe. Seeing a group of such professional caliber proved an enriching cultural experience for the Spanish Club.

We're Making The Future Brighter

The Future Farmers of America keep busy judging livestock, soils, and crops. Also the FFA freshmen members operate the coat check at the varsity basketball games in order to make money for FFA blue corduroy jackets. The club consists of 52 members. These members will probably be our future farmers of America.

Have you ever purchased candy at school? If so, you probably purchased it from one of 60 members of the Sunshine Society. Along with selling candy these ambitious and active girls have sponsored a dance and had a sunshine week. Every girl has chosen an ideal lady who they try to keep a secret. At the end of the school year they hold a tea at which they invite their ideal lady and reveal their identity.

The Sunshine Society has done its best to make this school a little brighter, and we're sure they are deeply appreciated.

No Doubt! Deadlines Are Headaches

Deadlines become a major priority for the journalism and yearbook staffs. Producing interesting writing, good pictures, and eye-catching layout designs is not an easy task when deadline dates lurk in the too-near future.

Few people are ever given the opportunity to write, illustrate, and totally produce a book. However, yearbook staff members write their fingers into cramps, break their polished fingernails while typing, put rings around their collars from cameras, and finally produce their very own book.

Interviewing peers and administration is a frightening experience, but becomes a way of life for most newspaper staff members. Unlike most writing assignments, newspaper stories must consist of only true facts and statements. Each word and phrase must be carefully chosen. Journalism students are not exempt from laws protecting the freedom of responsible news reporting.

The student press allows each student the privilege of expressing their own views, thoughts, and ideas.

Leaders Group Together For Student Success

The Fountain Central Honor Society is led by President Todd Rice, Vice President Greg Gookins, Treasurer Shawna Grubb, and Secretary Sally McDonald. Our Honor Society contains 17 members. In the past they have provided Christmas gifts for people in need. Each year the Honor Society sponsors a talent show to entertain the students as well as the community.

The Student Council, one of the most important organizations at FC, sees to it that the planning and execution of many events and functions are carried out and enjoyed by each individual. They organize such things as the homecoming activities, student council exchange programs with other area schools, and class elections for each new year. Also, the Student Council provides a decorated Christmas tree and a movie for all FC students. This year the Council proudly presented "The Apple Dumplin' Gang Rides Again". LaDonna Croft headed the 1981-82 Student Council, with the aid of the Vice President Missy French, Treasurer Lisa Ellis, and Secretary Carol Marshall.

There's A Little "Wizard" In All Of Us

The first play performed on stage was in 1968, when the play, "One Foot In Heaven" caught a crowd of hundreds. For sixteen years the Drama Club has indeed been a highlight in many F.C. students' extra-curricular activities.

Famous classics such as: "We Shook The Family Tree", "Portrait of Jennie", "Up The Down Staircase", "Brother Goose", "Charlie", "You Can't Take It With You", "Meet Me In St. Louis", "Plaza Suite", "The Hobbit", and "The Christmas Carol", lit-up the stage and aroused each individual's own personal talent for the thrill of performing. And now, to this list "The Wizard Of Oz" may be added. A classic piece of work in itself — that is what happens when a group of young talented people of the cast and the rest of the Drama Club pull together to organize a super production; one that will remain in the hearts who were involved, as well as the ones it touched visually.

One thing must be said, it couldn't of been as enjoyable and worthwhile if it wasn't for that loving, "goobly and chubbly", sponsor and director, Miss Charlotte Ventresca.

What has 200 legs and loves to be in the spotlight? The Drama Club! One hundred members strong, The Drama Club is sponsored by Miss Charlotte Ventresca. Working hard in developing the exact characters for the musical production of "The Wizard of Oz", the Drama Club proved to be a smashing success on the stage.

Creating an excellent play is difficult enough, but spelling "OZ" as a publicity stunt for the production proved to be almost impossible as shown above. The high school members of the Drama Club, however, could manage to pile into one picture. Amidst this bundle of talent, believe it or not, is the sponsor! Can you find the teacher? Sharing the joys and frustrations of putting a production on the stage causes new friendships to emerge among all cast members. Perhaps, their theme song should be "We Are Family".

As the years continue to roll, we will be certain to see not only talented high school drama members, but, also very gifted actors and actresses in the junior high drama as well as in the high school. Few treasures are as precious as the enthusiasm of the junior high age students striving to become truly talented. Many of the junior high members participated in the play as munchkins or dancing poppies, some joined the backstage crew, and some joined in organization, decoration, or lighting. Each young cast member has now tasted of "sweet success" on the stage and will hope to "break a leg" in future productions.

F.C. Choirs Brighten Our

The Concert Choir, consisting of eighteen members, participated in the Yuletide Feast, Spring Show, Fall Concert, and the Choral Festival.

The Choral Festival, attended by FC, Covington, Seeger, and Benton Central High Schools, creates a sense of camaraderie among choral departments. Unlike the usually competitive or athletic interactions with other schools, the Choral Festival strives to build friendships instead of rivals with the other area schools.

The Swing Choir participated in many of the same contests as the Concert Choir; however, they differ because of the type of music that each group prefers to sing. The Concert Choir studies and sings different styles of music within a wide range of composers and time periods, whereas the Swing Choir emphasizes pop music, the music of today.

A Solo and Ensemble Contest is held annually at Indiana State University. Senior vocalist Connie Ziegler was awarded a first place at the district and state contests. Esta Hoover also won a first at district and state in piano. The Barbershop Quartet consisting of Connie Ziegler, Esta Hoover, Penny Reed, and Ginger Wolf, placed first at district and second in the state contest. An eighth grade vocalist, Curt Bowlus, also placed second at the district contest.

The seventh and eighth grade choirs strive to become better musicians by studying to read, hear and perform music at a better caliber than when they entered chorus. Although the Jr. High Chorus is not as performance-oriented as the upper level choirs, they have also performed in two different concerts. A special choir from the seventh grade chorus was selected to sing at the Choral Awards Banquet.

At the awards banquet, the following outstanding students were honored: National Student Choral Award, Connie Ziegler; Outstanding Swing Choir, Coleen Evans; Outstanding Concert Choir, Karen Reed; Outstanding 8th grade, Curt Bowlus; Outstanding 7th grade, Chuck Walls.

We've Got The Beat

Directed by Mr. Michael Horan, the Fountain Central Music Department is made up of many different categories; Marching Band, Jazz Band, Concert Band and Pep Band.

The Jazz Band contains twenty members of high school students who put their time and effort into this program. They work on jazz techniques and try to better themselves as musicians. Although they don't perform for games and such, they put together an excellent program for the school's Spring Show. Hopefully, the Jazz Band will have a successful future.

The Concert Band is a program that teaches students to appreciate music and to advance their knowledge of the arts. The band learns how to play in different styles and rhythms and how to maintain self-discipline. Breathing techniques are stressed, for they play an important role in how a piece of music is played. The Concert Band performs a show every year for the public to enjoy and appreciate. The show gives the parents a chance to see their children perform.

Jr. High Bands Strive For Perfection

The sound of a screeching clarinet reed, the ear-piercing sound of an out-of-tune trumpet, and the awesome sound of an off-beat snare drum add up to the first days of Junior high band. However, after the horns are tuned and the director is on his podium, the noise stops.

Mr. Michael Horan leads these young musicians in a soft, mellow sound of a popular concert piece. They may have begun at the screeching stage, but, after hours of practice and determination, the bands were ready to perform.

They participated in the Spring Show and the Christmas concert. Each musician compiled every bit of musical talent that he/she had to produce the best for the audience.

Being a band member requires a lot of responsibility from both the students and the parents. Once the Jr. high musician has graduated to Sr. High band, he/she will begin long hours of practice for the marching band season and for the numerous contests that FC takes honors in. The upcoming musicians promise to keep the band in a tradition of winning!

Pep Band Wranglerettes, Back

The Fountain Central Pep Band is one to be admired. The director, Michael Horan, sponsors this group of musicians for the purpose of helping school spirit and enthusiasm. The pep band lightens up the school spirit at pep sessions and home basketball games. Pep band works directly with the Wranglerettes to provide music for the pre-game and halftime shows. Each band member has his/her very own special talent to add to the group; however, it takes every individual's determination and support to make the pep band organization a success. A few of their favorites songs consist of "Day Tripper", "Play That Funky Music", and "Boy From New York City".

Wranglerette Corps perform to "Rockin' Into Paradise", "A.D. 1928", "Too Much Time on My Hands", and "Long Time". With the help of their sponsor, Mrs. Jayne Green, they "tuned-up" their show and rocked to high placings throughout the year's contest. The corps enlisted some additional instruction this year from professional choreographers, Al and Alice Timbey of Madison, Wisconsin.

make a mistake is very hard work. All schools with flag and rifle corps usually enter the state-wide competitions as well as local competitions. The Wranglerettes received sixth place at the Muncie South contest and ended their season at the Indiana State Military and Mix finals bringing home a proud tenth place.

The corps is twenty-six members strong, consisting of: Head wranglerette, Tami Sample; five rifles and the captain, Lisa Wildman; six pom pons and the captain, Marita Kirkpatrick; and fourteen flag members with co-captains, Lisa Ellis and Stephanie Sheridan.

Overall the quality of the Wranglerette productions has seen an upswing this year. They performed much more difficult routines than they had ever attempted. The judges and other participating schools view FC Wranglerettes as being at the top of the competitive ranks. Each captain strived for the total potential of every girl during shows. The professional choreographers with Mrs. Green pushed the girls to excel to success. We must contend that they reached their goal!

Seniors wait to receive their farewell rose from the Head Wranglerette, Tami Sample.

Mrs. Green congratulates Tami Sample on a season well done.

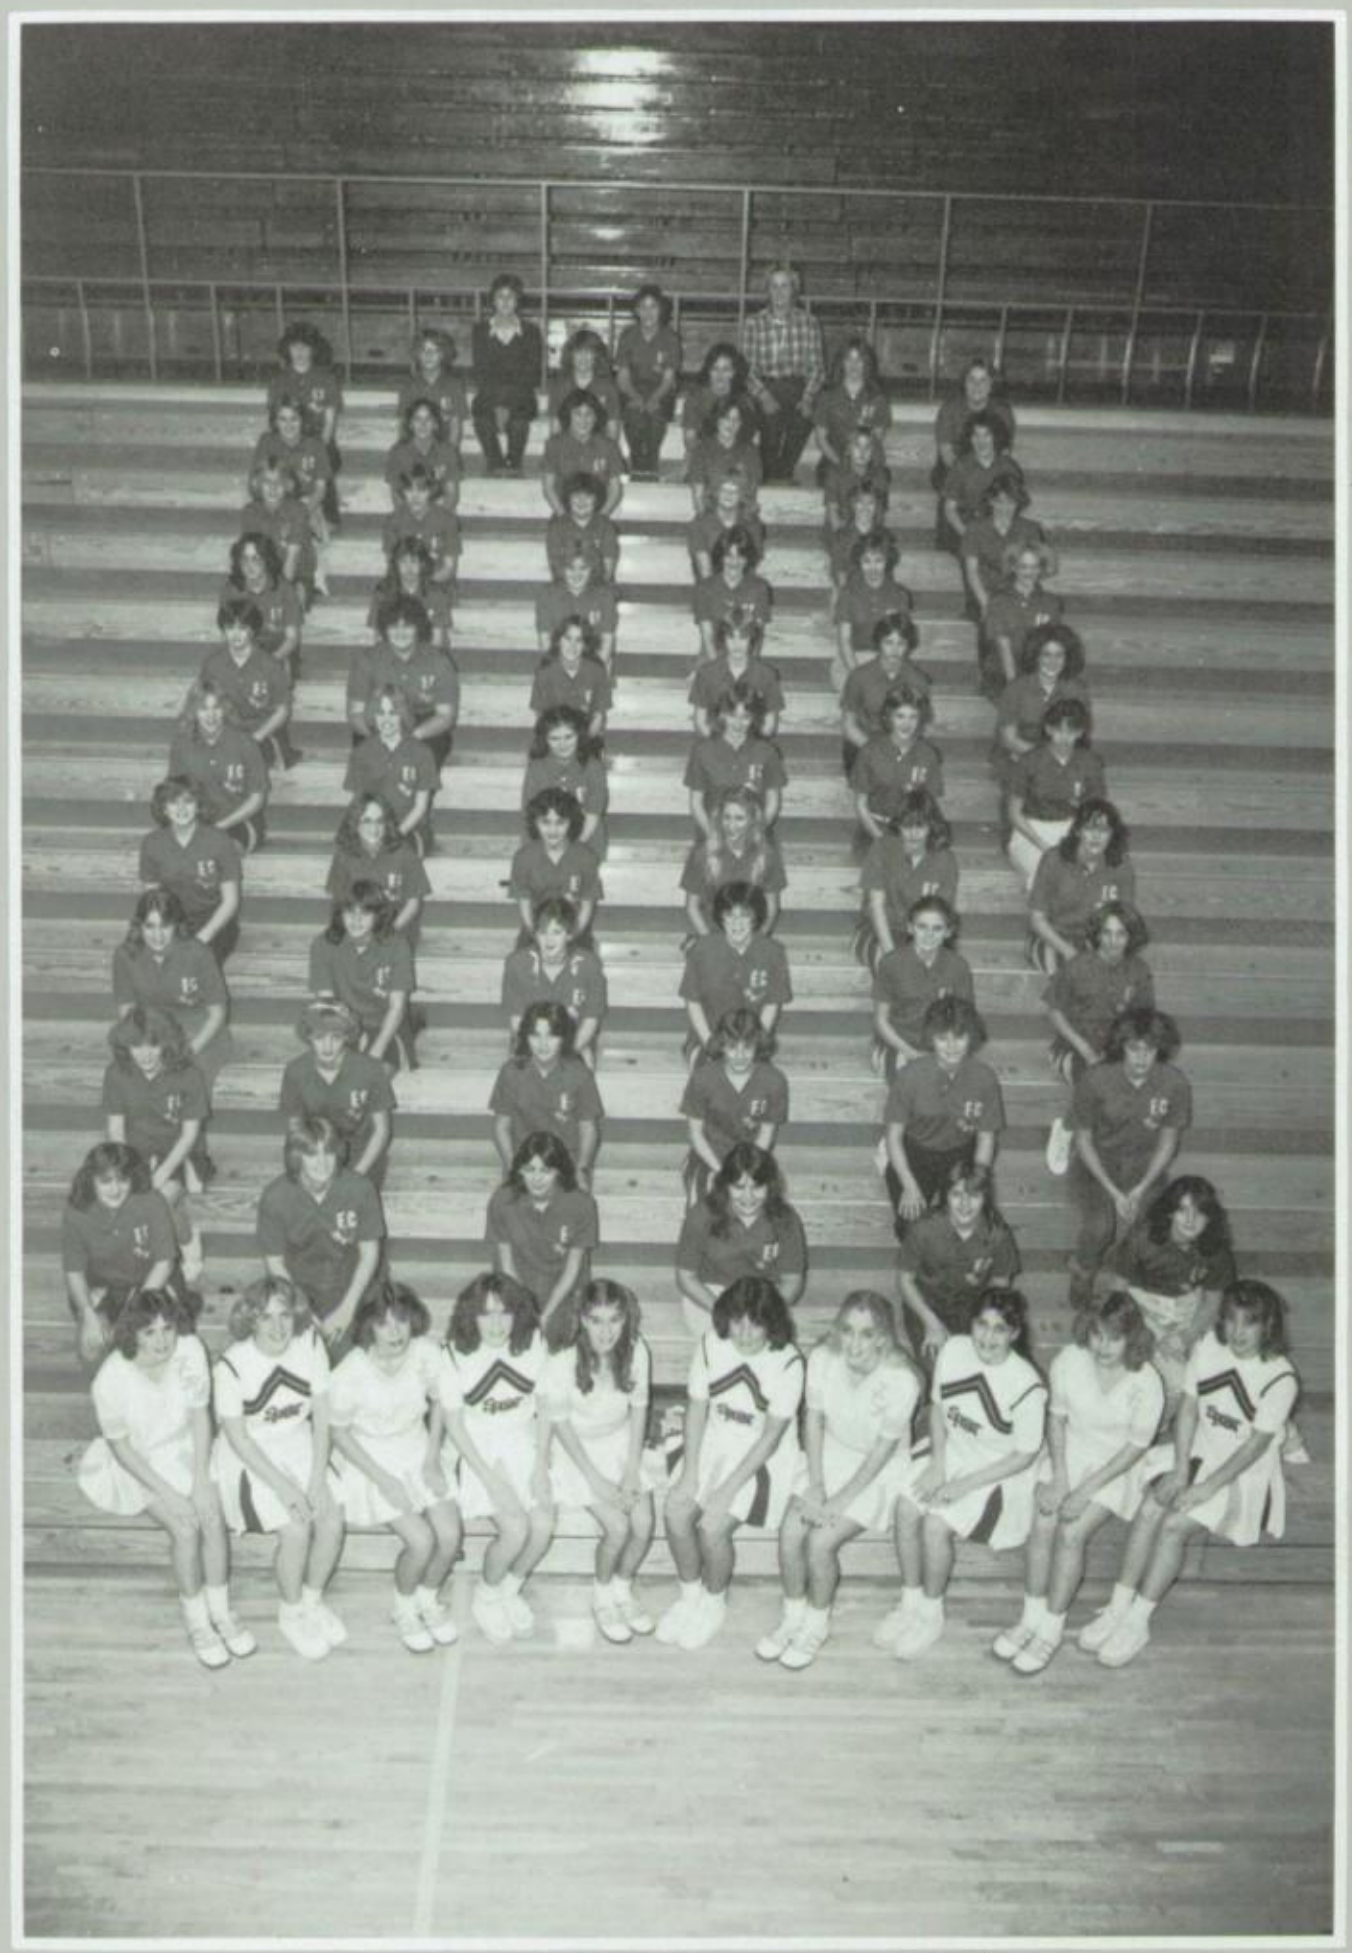
Spirit Is What

The Pep Club, known as the "ROWDIES" gave Fountain Central the boost it needed to have another winning season. The Rowdies joined in with chants and cheers loud enough to echo each spectator's every wish during each one of the games. Pep Club members must learn and practice the traditional Fountain Central cheers as well as new cheers presented by the cheerleaders.

The Rowdies gave the spirit squad a new look with matching shirts to show off at games. Mindy Ricketts and Barb Harrison, the sponsors for the Pep Club and cheerleader squads, combined efforts to produce an organized cheer block that could strive for total school support and spirit.

Working closely with the cheerleaders, the Rowdies became an integral part of the school spirit needed to support our athletes. A lot of hard work is put forth by the Rowdies, the cheerleaders, and, most of all, the athletes to insure that school pride remains high. A school without spirit leaders can become dull; however, vibrant, proud students can spread school spirit as if it were the common cold.



We're Yelling For

Being a cheerleader is not all glamour and good times, but most cheerleaders feel it is worth it. To become a cheerleader, girls must practice and try-out before the entire school body. Some prospective cheerleaders may suffer defeat while others secure varsity positions. Girls must be enthusiastic, friendly, and spirited. Cheerleaders need a special talent for pyramid building, freedom of movement, and also an out-going personality.

A cheerleader spends hours practicing, attending cheerleader camps, baking athletes little "spirit goodies", painting banners, etc. To be a good cheerleader, a girl must be responsible and dedicated. Her responsibilities will not end with Friday night games; she must decorate lockers and hallways and plan amusing, clever pep sessions. A lot of time is spent with cheerleading, but a cheerleader shares every game's success or failure as if she had played the game herself. Perhaps she did play from the sidelines!

The cheerleaders group together to decide the best cheer to perform during one of the most tense moments of the final sectional game.

Lesley Robinson expresses her spirit by showing that we are No. 1!

You've Got To Struggle And

Fountain Central's JV and Varsity squads combined to win a national first place plaque award from the United States Cheerleading Association. It enabled them to compete in the Grand Nationals held in East Lansing, Michigan. The camp session was held at Valparaiso University, July 23 through July 26, 1981. During the summer they practiced many long hours preparing for camp and organized a routine to be judged for the final night of competition. The squad also received a pep ribbon, a first place award and three second place awards. They were able to keep the "spirit doll" for one day and place a ribbon on the doll with all their names listed on it. The camp was a well organized learning experience. The squads learned different techniques and safety rules for building high mounts and learned new cheers and chants for football and basketball seasons. The camp gave the girls a chance to meet various new friends from the Illinois and Ohio area as well as from Indiana.

Fight To Win Honor

In the fall of 1981 the freshmen squad also received an award. The cheerleaders went to Crawfordsville for a cheerleader contest. They prepared themselves for the event for several weeks. They stayed after school many nights practicing and formed a routine to perform. The squad received a first place trophy. The girls were very excited and happy and accepted the award with pride.

The seventh and eighth grade cheerleaders anticipate the upcoming years with a little fear and a great deal of enthusiasm while hoping to become a varsity cheerleader. Each girl watches, learns, and attempts various cheer mounts that have been passed down from the varsity level. Many junior high cheerleaders find that difficult pyramids are easier for them, especially when the girls are smaller in size.

Aside from the awards received, the greatest reward for all cheerleaders is the privilege to support the various teams and the entire school with pride.

Dedication Brings New Experiences

Being an athlete is not a new experience for me. They saw my potiential when I was just a toddler, and when I was big enough to walk and weeks later run, I was imitating basketball, baseball, and football players and even golfers. It all sounds funny, but they have snapshots of me with my uncle's basketball team and snapshots of me in a football jersey along with many clippings of my boy's club accomplishments. I was voted "Boy of the Year" for winning the State of Indiana's Optimist Club award. My picture still hangs in the club house in Terre Haute, Indiana.

I won city of Terre Haute awards in football and tennis one year, by default (ha-ha). I even won a ping pong contest.

My stay here at Fountain Central is not new to me, so the adjustment was probably more for the students here, than for me. Again, I was born in a neighborhood of caucasion people, only a few black families. I went to I.S.U.'s nursery school where I was the only black child. On to elementary and Jr. High were the quota was far from equal. All this was just preparation time for what lies ahead. As Mom would say, "It's all in God's plan."

The three school years here have been a real experience. The good times have definitely outweighed the bad ones. Here the awards you receive are earned, fair play is not an issue — for that the F.C. administration must be commended.

I would like to take the opportunity to recognize my coaches, especially Coach Dale Hummer who initially made me feel like a part of F.C. my first year by being a manager for the football team; Coach Phil Rash, my tennis instructor whose attitude and friendship I'll never forget; Coach Ron Thomas, my baseball coach, who once told my mom he knew a good athlete when he saw one and there was no doubt that I would make it in someone's college. That kind of encouragement really helps. And last but not least, thanks to my man, Coach Jerry Snapp, through all the sprains, bumps, and knocks I received, he still kept believing in me. For all the good times and bad times, he was there to help me through. My most memorable thanks are for the times during the snow days when he thought enough of his team and me to make sure I had transportation to and from practice. That's dedication and I thank you Coach Snapp. I also know that through him I have received numerous local, state, and national awards. I just cannot say enough about this man.

I would also like to thank my teachers and the past and present school administration for all their verbal and written expressions of encouragement they've given to me. It has really meant a lot to me and to my family.

I guess I really sound as if this is the end. But actually, it is the beginning and I must not forget to give God the praise for giving me this opportunity to play for Him and to meet so many beautiful people.

What being an athlete here at F.C. has meant to me is a new beginning and a great future. "All the way — to Ball State University."

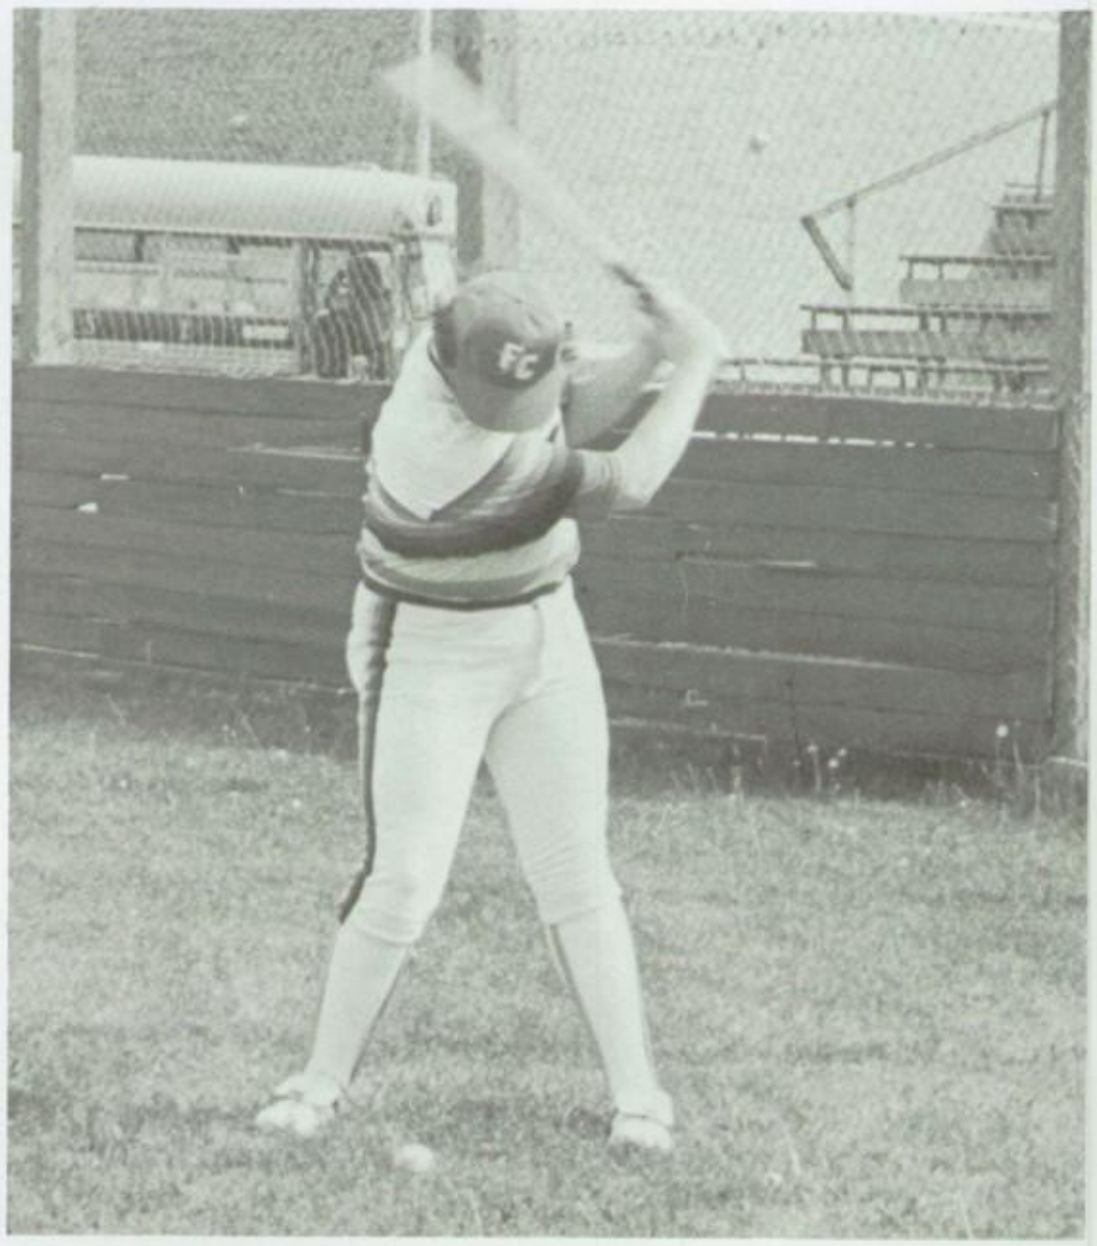
The Fountain Central Baseball Team saved its best effort for last. After graduation,after school was out for the summer, the baseball team rebounded from a frustrating season to be the Cinderella team of the state by avenging humiliating defeats to North Vermillion and Covington to win the Sectional, the first since 1977.

Saturday morning, June 5, the Mustangs defeated North Vermillion 5-3. Eric Donovan was the winning pitcher and drove in the winning run in the 6th inning. Derek Haas had 2 hits. In the championship game, that same afternoon, the Mustangs fought from behind the whole game. Doubles by Dennis Payton, Gary McGrady, and a home-run by Dan Sowers brought FC to within 4-3 in the bottom of the 4th. However, Covington scored 3 runs in the next two innings to regain their original lead, 7-3. After hits by Brian Moore and Gary McGrady and walks to Dan Sowers and Derek Haas, the Mustangs trailed 7-4 in the bottom of the 6th with 2 outs and bases loaded. Then, on consecutive pitches, Eric Donovan and Steve Nehrig drilled hits that scored two runs each. Suddenly, there was pandemonium in the FC dugout as the Mustangs took an 8-7 lead. Pitcher Jim Seibold shut down the frustrated Trojans in the 7th inning as they dejectedly watched the Blue and Gold fans and players celebrate.



Kenny Mapes practices swinging his bat while hoping for a home run.

I'm One Of Them

It is a real pleasure to be a part of Fountain Central's student body, especially when you are a foreign exchange student like me. Fountain Central's students are very understanding and nice people. Maybe you haven't really noticed this, but I can assure you they are!

When I first arrived here, I was surprised about the warm welcome they gave me and all the kindness they showed me. It didn't take long to get adjusted to this friendly atmosphere which exists among Fountain Central's students. One can hardly find someone who will not listen to you when you've got a problem or need advice.

I, also, was very impressed about the way the students work together in class, especially in productive classes like journalism and yearbook. Every individual is an important part of the whole thing. People working together and trying to get the job well done takes a great deal of companionship among students, in cooperation with teachers, which is not hard to find at Fountain Central.

It was really amazing how my classmates treated me, like I was one of them and not just a foreign exchange student who had arrived only a few days ago. Everyone at Fountain Central tried to make this year one of the greatest I've ever had. I'd like to tell all of you, "You got the job well done!" I enjoyed my stay at Fountain Central very much!

Not only that I improved my language abilities, thanks to Mr. Bill Boone's English class and I now have a good impression on America's history. I also know how to get along on my own, because of Mrs. Rose Lewsader's home ec. class. Through my participation in beginning foods, I'm now able to prepare American pancakes, among many other things, when I'm back home in Germany. I enjoyed all my classes a lot and I'm sure that I'll benefit from it.

There just doesn't exist good enough words to express how grateful I feel about everything that the big "FC Family" gave me.

I wish and hope that there will be many more foreign exchange students at Fountain Central after me who'll have the same great opportunity of being and studying with all the nice people that I had.

Before I finish I would like to thank the students, teachers, administration, cooks, and bus drivers, etc. for letting me be a part of them for this year. I felt very much at home. You all are such nice people! I'll miss you when I'm back home. Thank you so much for everything. I'll never forget this wonderful year at Fountain Central High School.

Birgit Freystatzky

School Board officials are elected to a four-year term: Peggy Perry, Jackson township; Dick Keeling, Cain township; Ron Manning, Van-Buren township; Don Lewsader, Mill Creek township, Linn Quigle, Richland township.

Southeast Fountain School Corporation's Superintendent, Gerald York and his secretaries, Darlene Kenny and Tami Allen go over some papers together.

New Faces New Ideas New Changes

Principal John Williams shows his secretary, Barb Clark, some papers she may type for him.

Assistant Principal Brian Cronk and secretary, Nancy Suttles, appear to be having fun smiling at the camera instead of working.

Mary Roth and Jack Donovan, guidance counselors (standing), seem to look tired from a hard day of listening to students' problems. Janet Wiggins, secretary, has had just as rough a day.

New faces with innovative ideas filled the top administrative seats at Fountain Central. A new superintendant, principal and vice principal gave Fountain Central the chance at a refreshing new start.

Joining FC in June 1981, Gerald York began the process of hiring five new teachers as well as other new faces.

Brian Cronk became the new vice principal in charge of discipline as well as athletic director in charge of scheduling athletic events. Numerous snow days throughout the winter sport's season inflicted Mr. Cronk with the headache syndrome, PNMS, "Please, no more snow."

Mr. Mytron Lisby relinquished his principal's position (after school had begun), to Mr. John Williams, previous Brownsburg High School Vice Principal. Mr. Williams introduced many new changes throughout the year at Fountain Central.

New faces bring new ideas. New ideas bring new changes. Working as a team, Mr. York, Mr. Williams, and Mr. Cronk began to give Fountain Central High School the fresh new start that it needed. The administration, with teacher input, was giving students a new outlook at the school as a whole: School is a place for learning and even enjoying the idea of a good, friendly atmosphere in which learning can take place.

Teachers Motivate, Encourage And Share

Teaching is motivating, encouraging, and sharing thoughts with others. It is caring about another's learning experience and being a part of it.

Watching a student grasp an idea, ponder it carefully, and insert it into his/her mind as a learned object is a rewarding and exciting experience for any teacher. Likewise, however, watching a student become puzzled, confused, and distraught over misunderstood materials is a frustrating demonstration of the feat of students and teachers alike. Teaching, like learning, is hard work.

Teachers do much more than talk in front of a classroom. They prepare materials for each day's classes, grade hours of papers, sponsor organizations' activities, coach athletic events, act as disciplinarians, and even patrol the potties.

Few students will leave Fountain Central without selecting at least one favorite teacher. That teacher will have left a lasting impression on the student's personality or way of thinking. Maybe that special teacher will have shared a part of his/her self with that student.

Perhaps one of the most frustrating facts of teaching, however, is that learning is a two-way process. A teacher may teach and share new ideas, but it is still not a success until a student makes the effort to learn. You see, teaching is not enough to produce learning. A student must want to learn.

Some classrooms require that a teacher have an aide to assist the students; therefore, Fountain Central employs several aides each year. The main function of an aide is supervision, whether that be in study hall, in the pool, in the hall, or in the library. Library aides also assist teachers in ordering audio-visual materials for classroom use.

The Helpful People Behind The Scenes

What would Fountain Central be like without our needed cooks, janitors and bus drivers? The cooks are very important to our school for they satisfy our hungry stomachs. The janitors provide their energy as well as their patience, and clean every corner of FC. They run a day, night and weekend shift. The bus drivers have kept their mind all year and have delivered the students each day like clock work.

These persons keep FC running efficiently and without them there wouldn't be any school. Much appreciation should be given to them.

Teresa Bacon:
Always have ambition and a goal toward which to strive. Work hard, have fun, and BE HAPPY. Give us a call from Malibu Beach!

Love,
Mom and Dad

Karla Burkman:
You have reached a milestone in the road of life. We are proud of your accomplishments. Now as the road of life leads on, may you set your goals high and achieve them.

Love,
Mom and Dad

Teresa Covault:
When you read this, you will have completed your high school education. You will be leaving one school of learning and entering another. We wish you good luck and success and want you to know that you will always have our love and support.

Dad and Mom

Regina Crowder:
We want to say you have been a great joy to us. We wish you the greatest success and happiness in the future.

Love,
Mom and Dad

Cara Duncan:
As you face each challenge, remember our ABC's of life: Maintain a positive and healthy *a*ttitude; treat everyone as your *b*rother; and have *c*ourage, for the Lord never leaves your side. Always believe that your parents love you and our arms are eternally open.

Dad and Mom

Lisa Ellis:
To achieve your goal in life approach each task with, "amino et fide" (courage and confidence). Accept challenges, learn from your experiences, touch others' lives. Then you can and will achieve success.

Love,
Mom and Dad

Darcy Foster:
It's hard to believe that we've watched you grow thru the years of lessons, Scouts, Wranglerettes, school clubs, braces, glasses, contacts, singing, skating, driving, and your biggest accomplishment of all — Yearbook Editor! You have blossomed into a very pretty young lady! We are very proud of you and glad that you are our daughter!!

All our love,
Dad and Mom

When I was a child, my speech, feelings, and thinking were all those of a child; now that I am a man, I have no more use of childish ways. What we see now is like the dim image in a mirror; then we shall see face to face. What I know now is only partial; then it will be complete, as complete as God's knowledge of me.
Meanwhile these three things remain; faith, hope, and love, and the greatest of these three is love.

Corinthians 13; 8-13

Lisa Knowles:
We are very proud of you and the way you have worked to become a graduate of 1981-82. Work just as hard for your future goals. You have added great joy to our lives.

All our love,
Dad and Shirley

Alex Kunkle:
We know that you have the mental and physical ability to accomplish any goals that you set for yourself. We have enjoyed you in all your school activities.

Love,
Dad and Mom

Shawna Grubb:
You have filled our hearts with pride! Such as receiving an Honor Jacket, being accepted into Nationa Honor Society, and watching you perform in band and as a drum major. But most of all being the special daughter you are to us.

Mom and Dad

Cynthia Lynn Keller:
Congratulations, Cindy! You've completed twelve years of educatio Now that you've achieved this goal, may your future bring much succes and happiness.

Love,
Mom and Dad

Leanna Matlock,
Congratulations on your Graduation! You can take pride in your many accomplishments. We love you and wish you much happiness and success at Ball Stat University. You're going to be a great teacher!

Beside you alway
Mom and Dad

Sally McDonald:
Your many accomplishments: Honor Banquets; Wranglerettes; band trips and concerts; Pony Express; school plays; girl's track; and piano, have made your school years special to us. We are proud you — and love you!

Mother and Dad

Gary McGrady:
May the rest of your life be as exciting and productive as the past four years have been.

All our love,
Mom and Dad

Gary Mitchell:
Love of family, love of sports, love of life have played an important role in your competitive world. You have faced pressure, pain, and glory through them. We love you and thank you for all the enjoyable years.

Love,
Dad and Mom

Brian Riley:
Yes, Brian we are very proud of you. It has been a long hard twelve years, but we made it! We wish you good health and happiness in the future. May everything you try succeed!

Love,
Dad, Mom and family

Scott Myers:
We wish you all the best that life can offer. Your future will develop from your desires and efforts. Your straight forward and honest approach to life and your deep concern for others will help fill your road with opportunities. Our love is always with you!

Mom and Dad

Susan Riley:
I am very proud of you, as I am of all my children. Never be a quitter in life, no matter what the odds. Possess a stubborn determination to go ahead, linked with a strong faith in God.

Love,
Your father

Sharon Pigg:
You had a long hard struggle with things. So we hope that things go well with you from now on and the very best to you in the future.

With all our love,
Mom and Dad

Tami Sample:
The many memories we have of your school years are precious and we are proud to have shared them with you. We will continue to share in your future activities as they also become memories.

Love,
Mom and Dad

Bill Shoaf:
I wish you the very best and good luck. May God be with you.

Love,
Mom and Dad

Connie Ziegler:
Continue to follow Proverbs 3:5-6, because you have learned this lesson well, you have been nothing but a blessing to everyone. We love you!

Mom and Dad

Ginger Wolf:
Life at 18 and Graduation is just starting! Wherever you go or whatever you do, continue living and working in a way that you can be proud of yourself. From this comes self satisfaction and success.

Love,
Mother and Dad

Robert (Bob) White:
I would like to wish you every happiness in the future. May God bless you.

With all my love,
Mom

Lisa Wildman:
As you come to another Cross Road of your education, we are very proud of your many accomplishments and pray God's presence with you as you continue down life's path.

With love,
Mom and Dad

Seniors Make Their Final Appearance

Graduating Class Of 1982

Graduation is the final stage of childhood. It is a new beginning into an unknown world, the world of adulthood. What signals the onset of adulthood? One day, will I wake up into a new person? Will I put away childish toys and suddenly be a grown person? How will I act? Will I suddenly bloom from a bud into a full flower of maturity? Perhaps, I've already reached adulthood. Perhaps, I've already changed. Maybe the change was so gradual that only my mother noticed. Walking toward the platform to shake a hand, accept a diploma, and grow-up . . . suddenly, I yearn for Tonka trucks, baby dolls, and skinned knees, I yearn for ghosts and goblins, Santa Claus, and Peter Cottontail. Childish memories of a sandbox, a jungle gym, and my first bicycle linger in my mind. Where is my teddy bear, my security blanket? I accept my diploma amidst a blur of childhood thoughts. Fearing the unknown future, fearing to stand still, incapable of reversing time . . . I plunge into adulthood.

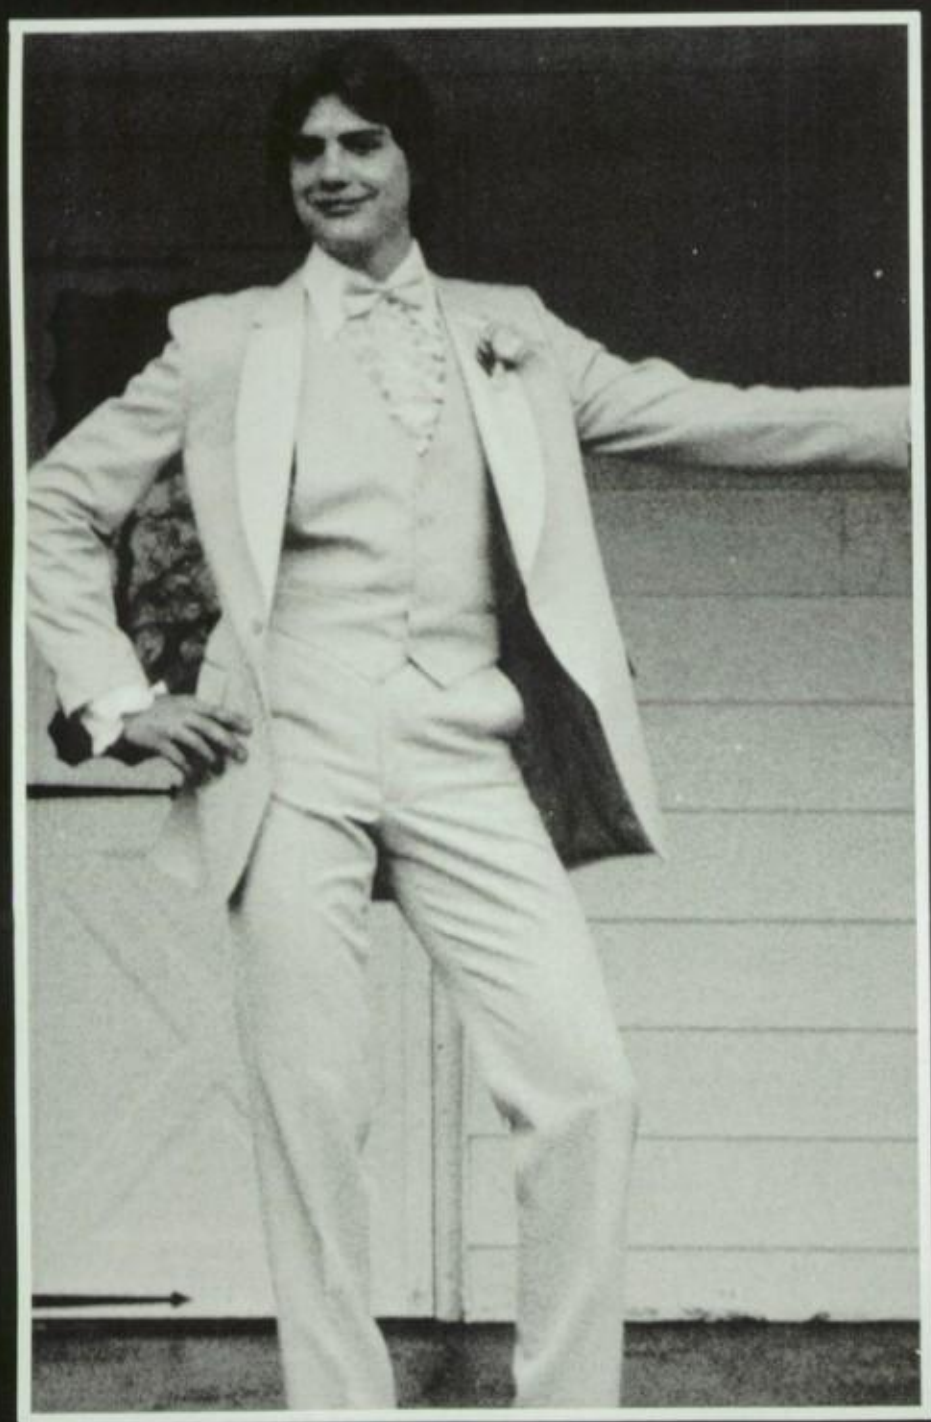
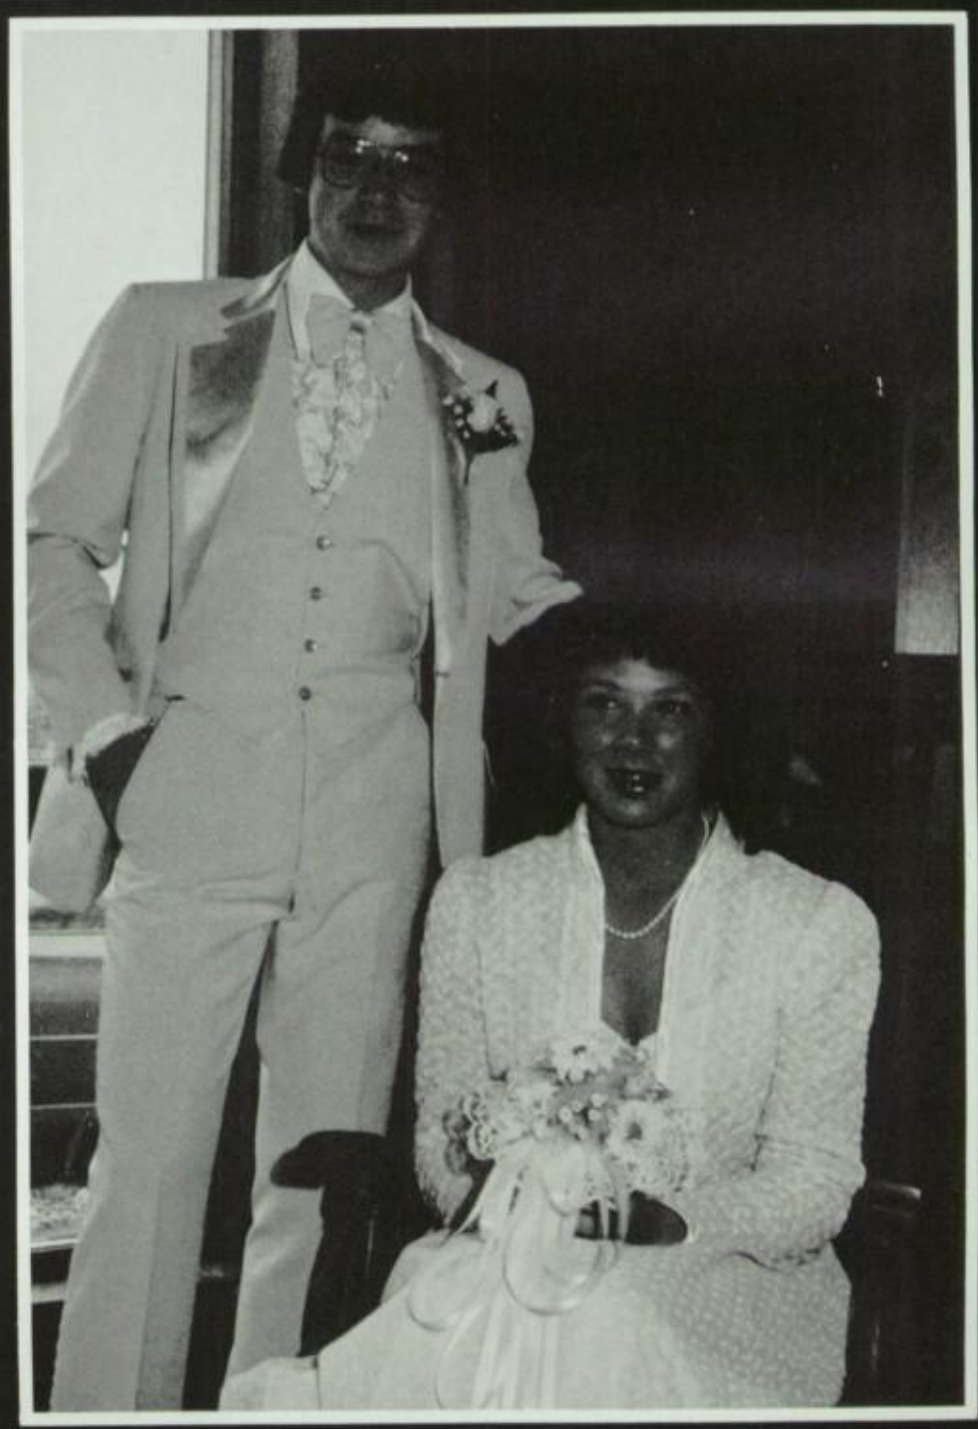
Just Once

Just once in your life, the magic of midnight engraves a memory deep into the recesses of your mind. Blue jeans and T-shirts are replaced by tuxedoes and formals as students transform into perfect gentlemen and ladies. Shown at the right, this transformation is captured by the camera as Junior Gossett, Kathy Amburn, Lori Lamey, and Scott Hughes prepare to dine and dance the evening away.



Is this the cover of a sales brochure? Has Scott Hughes decided to become a male model? With the help of his friends(?), this picture made its way into the yearbook. Will Scott ever forgive us?



Jay Yates, likewise, competes for a tuxedo modeling career, but he has learned the success formula — add a beautiful young lady, Miss Jamie Ratcliff.

In Your Life

Wesley Stockdale, Shawna Grubb, Kim Bentley, Toma Hutson, and Doug Bowers unexpectedly found themselves among the other convicts at the after prom. Toma's smile could be a hint of excape plans!

Gene and Carol Stockdale prepare their game booth before the students arrive. Parents spend many hours of preparation to secure a big success at each annual after prom. A special thank you from all of us!

May 7, 1982, the Fountain Central High School gymnasium was transformed into the "Magic of Midnight". Stars twinkled throughout the night as couples danced to the sounds of Morning Star.

Sponsored by the junior class, the juniors and seniors donned tuxedoes and beautiful long dresses to be swept into the romantic atmosphere of the evening. Pausing upon the wooden, arched bridge, or even, perhaps, dancing across the bridge, one could believe that a stream flowed underneath, the flowers emitted a sweet fragrance, and birds rustled in imaginary trees.

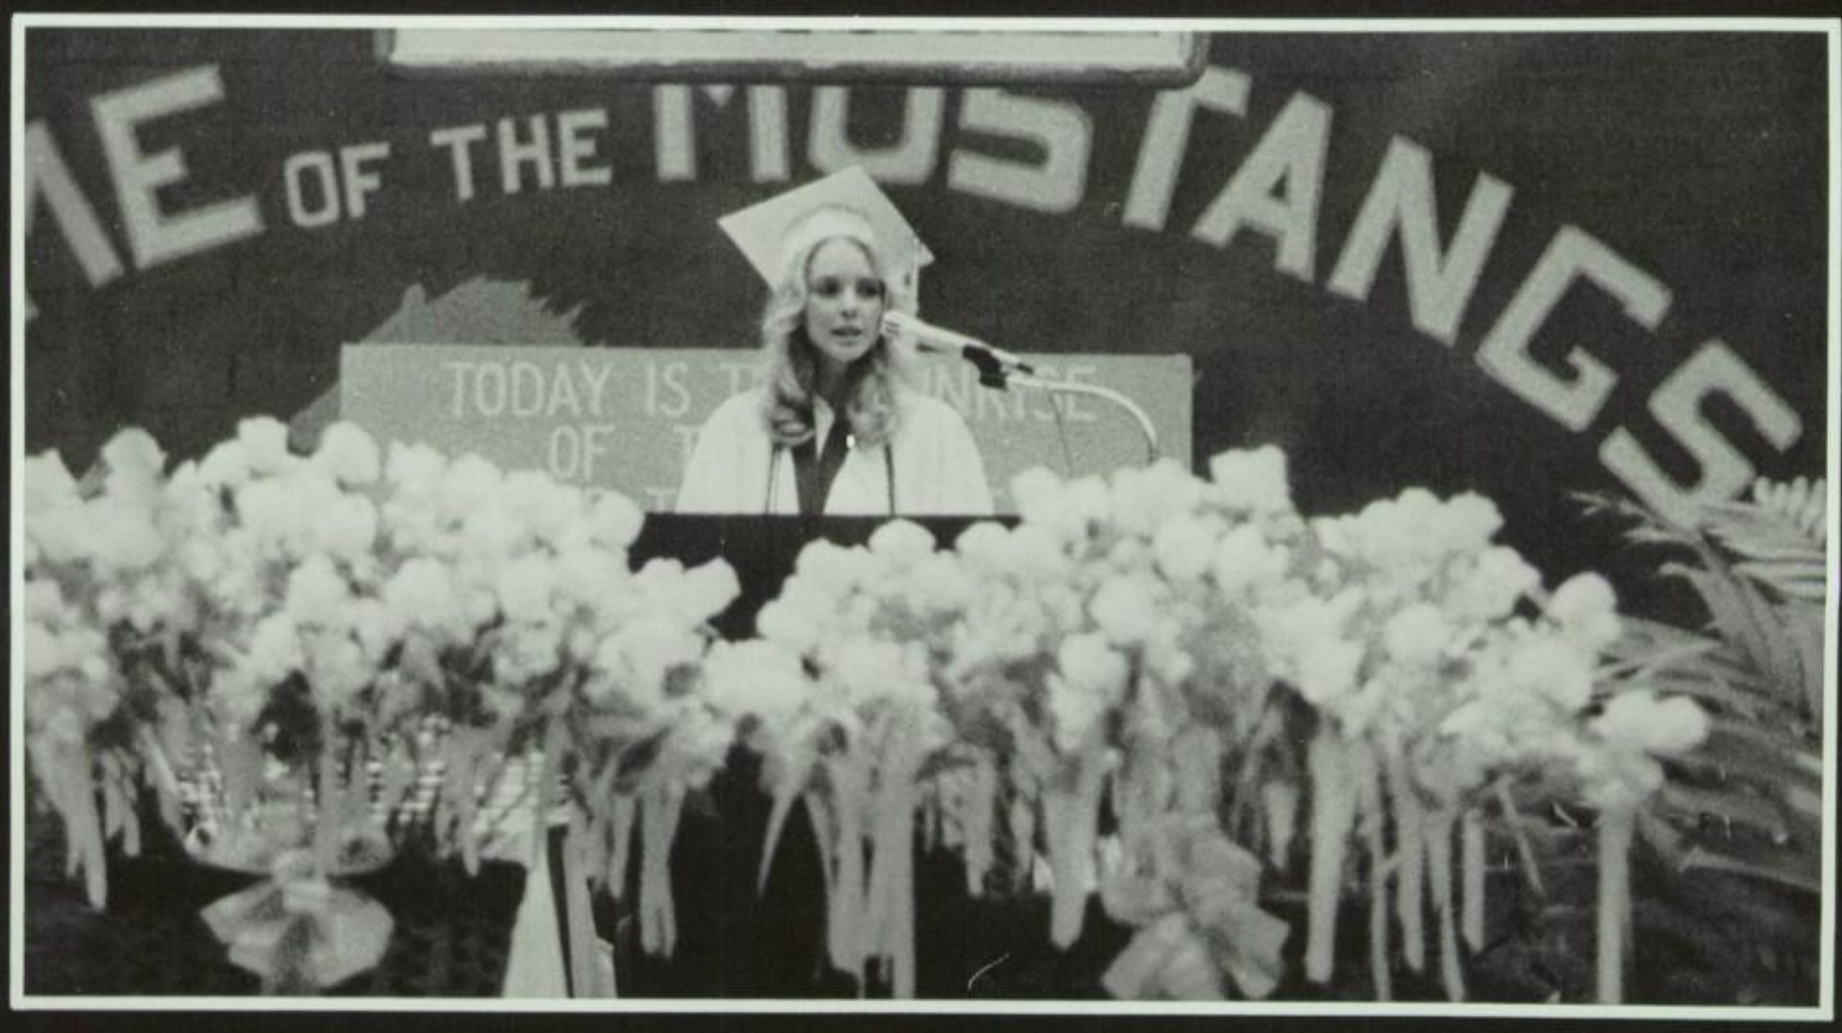
The grand march of couples and the crowning of royalty was the highlight of the magical evening. Voted King and Queen for the evening, Derek Haas and LaDonna Croft accepted their crowns and began their special dance. Princess Missy French and Prince Dan Sowers soon joined them on the dance floor.

The "Magic of Midnight" melted into memories as the "Gay 90's" after prom began. Sponsored by junior and senior parents and supported by local businesses, the after prom was filled with games, prizes, and food. Principal John Williams promised to keep the dunk tank busy as students attempted (successfully?) to dampen his attire. Some students lucked into fabulous prizes, while a few unlucky souls were simply sent to "jail".

The whole evening, night, and wee-morning hours was filled with romance and fun. Prom Night '82 was a total success and it will be a memory to treasure forever.

Today Is The Sunrise Of Tomorrow

Tami Sample, the Valedictorian of 1982, expresses her sadness and joy that she and her classmates have experienced during their time together at FC.



Kim Bentley, the Salutatorian of 1982, addresses the audience of the 1982 graduation with tears in her eyes.

And The Sunset Of Yesterday.

Paula Hannon gives Mr. Keeling a smile of accomplishment.

Steve Nehrig eagerly reaches for his diploma.

Mike Rice has an expression of "finally".

As the graduating class of 1982 comes before you today, our minds are filled with expectation of hopes for the future, and yet, our hearts are filled with a longing for memories of the times we've had together. I will not say that we have had thirteen years of perfectly good memories, because that would be unrealistic, but we have shared thirteen years of learning and growing. In those times of victory, we shared the glory. And in those times of defeat we grew stronger. We examined the cause of each loss and strived to correct and improve ourselves the next time, for no loss is a failure unless we fail to learn. In that respect, we have never failed. We have succeeded together.

Our first challenge came as each of us prepared ourselves for the first day of school. Would we like it? Was it as hard as the older students said? Would we make friends? Whether we were attending Richland, Kingman, or Veedersburg grade school, we were at a major starting point in our lives, It was our new beginning. We survived that first year of being the youngest. We listened with awe and wonder as our older experienced friends talked of multiplication tables and some form of writing that wasn't the same as printing. We wanted our chance to learn all that too, and our chance came. We soon moved from kindergarten to being official members of the grade school.

Then the rumors began. Some people said we were going to "consolidate." To a second grade student that seemed like a terribly large word. Honestly, many of us wondered what it all meant. In August of 1972 we found out. On a clear late-summer morning each of us unloaded our bus at the new Southeast Fountain Elementary School. We felt a mixture of nervousness and excitement, for this was a totally new and different experience compared to attending a small school. As we walked into the third grade learning center, we were stunned to see a huge room filled with over a hundred strange faces. How could we ever possibly remember the names of all those people? With the help of several classes and many recesses, that day filled with nameless strangers faded into a memory as we became one group, one family.

We were initiated into the high school as we entered our freshman year. Teachers challenged us more as students and as individuals. They expected us to put away our childish ways. Organizations and sports began to fill our lives. Those activities gradually molded us into leaders . . . leaders of tomorrow.

Make It To Your Potential;

In the spring of our junior year our class faced a crisis. It was not an athletic defeat nor an academic problem, but an emotional shock. On that school day, at that moment when we learned that one of our classmates had lost his life, each of us lost a part of ourselves that we can never hope to regain, for Alan Clawson touched and blessed so many of our lives, in so many ways.

Throughout our thirteen years we have been complimented often on our high goals, our achievements, and our potential. We have not made the journey on our own, however. Many people have helped us, and I would like to thank all of them . . . I would especially like to thank the senior parents, for though the successes, victories, and losses, they have always offered their assistance, support, and love. They have set the examples and standards that have inspired our lives . . .

But above all, the one friend and guide that I owe the most to is my Lord, Jesus Christ. As a young girl my mother told me, "What you are is God's gift to you; what you make of yourself is your gift to God." I have strived to offer Him only my best and in return He has given me blessings too numerous to mention. I thank Him for my family, for my friends, for His guidance in my life, and for allowing me to be a part of this graduation class of 1982. He has given us the potential to become a great class of people, and what we make of ourselves will be our gift to Him. I pray that God through His goodness will richly bless my classmates as our final year together comes to an end. May He walk with them always and help them to continue to learn and grow each day of their lives.

We, the senior class of 1982, have traveled a long road to come before you today. That road was sometimes filled with sorrow, but more often filled with joy. As we part and God leads us in various ways, may we always remember this: Good times may come and go but memories last forever . . . forever . . .

All those students who contributed their essays and art for the contest section.
Dick Maurer, our representative, for his good humor when times were tough and for all his help in getting this yearbook together.

Well, our book is done!

I sincerely hope you all liked it. We, the yearbook staff, had a great time putting it together. It takes a lot of patience, hard work, dedication, and a great sense of humor to get it together and this year's staff had it. I am proud of them.

I'd like to thank my Mom and Dad for putting up with me calling home sixth hour quite a few days and telling them I wouldn't be home for supper and I didn't know what time I would be home. Mom and Dad put up with yearbook layouts, pictures, etc. laying all over the house and didn't even mind. I love you both!

I would also like to thank Mrs. "P". Without her I would only be half-way done with the book. There were nights she took everything home with her and worked 'til 2 or 3 in the morning trying to hit deadline. She's a super great adviser. Thanks, "P"!!

Last but not least, thanks goes to a great staff!! I've had a lot of fun working on this book with all of you. Love ya!!
